Why Russia Is Becoming Prosperous in Spite of the War

THE Russian Minister of Finance has just issued a public statement in which he sets forth a marvelous condition of prosperity in Russia.

Russia is in the midst of the world's greatest war; she has dealt her enemies some heavy blows, and she has received some blows still more staggering. Now, almost two years have witnessed her life and death struggle against German, Austrian and Turk. But for the wonderful interposition of a new factor of prosperity, her people would long ago have begun to feel the economic distress of this tremendous conflict. But in the case of Russia the tendency of conditions has, according to the Russian minister, Bark, been miraculously reversed. The minister of finance says:

"On the other hand, there is nothing illusory or specious about the Russians' prosperity. It rests upon the incontrovertible fact of the Russian people's increased earnings and savings.

"When, a year ago, the savings banks showed a monthly increase of 50,000,000 rubles, it was regarded as phenomenal. But that was only the beginning. During the month of January the savings banks alone showed an increase in deposits of 120,000,000 rubles. This is accounted for principally by the growing thrift and economy of the peasants since the enforcement of prohibition, by their greater earning power and the higher wages they command. This marvelous prosperity makes Russia capable of raising large numbers of successful internal loans, and it is by this means chiefly that we hope to defray the expenses of the war, which have now reached 1,000,000,000 rubles monthly."

Such has been the unparalleled result of the enforced abstinence from the use of intoxicating liquors by the Russian people. They have repaired the damage of frightful defeat, they have met the unprecedented demands of their greatest conflict, they have resupplied the wastage and destruction which whole millions of men and ages of science have combined to effect, and, doing all this, they have doubled their prosperity while they have carried their terrible burden.

The restriction in the use of strong drink is an overshadowing question. Its evils are to those who would palter with it like the ghost of Banquo, which would not down. The time is coming, and coming very fast, when we must face the question seriously.

Read All You Can ABOUT Shakespeare

But, Above All, READ Shakespeare

Copyright, 1916, by the Star Company.

THREE hundred years ago died William Shakespeare. You will see much written about him for the next few weeks. Men more or less great will tell what they think about him—as sparrows, perhaps, tell each other what they think of the oak tree.

Read all that you can ABOUT Shakespeare. But, above all, READ Shakespeare himself, know HIM.

If you do not know Shakespeare well, you do not know the English language well. He created the language as it is today.

If you do not know Shakespeare's work, you do not know the greatest imaginative mind that has lived on this planet. The man who passes his life within easy reach of the works of Shakespeare and does not spend hours, days and months studying that greatest genius, is like the poor peasant who dwells near a great Gothic cathedral and never enters its doors.

We urge every reader to have constantly on his reading table a complete edition of Shakespeare's works.

As we told you a year ago, we made this possible by publishing—through Hearst's International Library, No. 119 West Fortieth street, New York City—an admirable COMPLETE edition of all of Shakespeare's works, which is sold for one dollar.

The edition is absolutely complete, one of the best standard editions. It is well illustrated. And, as you may suppose, offering it to our readers has meant not a profit, but a loss.

The loss to you will be very great if you do not make Shakespeare's work part of your life.

In a few days Shakespeare will have been dead three hundred years.

A little later on you will be dead. It is a disgrace to go out of this world not knowing well the greatest writer of any time or language, born on the planet.

If you are able to buy an expensive edition of Shakespeare, one costing a large sum, do so.

You cannot get a work more complete than that which we offer to you for one dollar. Buy it at a store, or the newsdealer will get it for you, if you give him the order.

If you cannot get it otherwise, write to Hearst's International Library, No. 119 West Fortieth street, New York City.

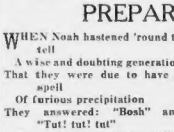
More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

PREPAREDNESS—IN OTHER DAYS

WHEN Noah hastened 'round to tell
A wise and doubting generation
That they were due to have a spell
Of furious precipitation
They answered: "Bosh" and "Tut! tut! tut!"
They told him calmly: "Why the flurry?"
They said that Noah was a nut
And added coldly, "We should worry."



THEY pointed to the cloudless skies
And clamored loudly all together:
"We're shrewd and up-to-date and wise,
No one can fool us on the weather.
These pessimistic weather sharks,"
Said they, "will not get us to heed 'em.
Why waste our money building arks
Unless we know that we shall need 'em?"

BUT Noah just pulled off his coat
And with his many sons and daughters
Put up a vessel that would float
However high should rise the waters.
And when with a portentous sound
The Heavens started to unbuckle—
"I'd rather be prepared than drowned,"
Said Noah with a knowing chuckle.

How Poisons Warn You

By Woods Hutchinson, M. D.

The World's Best Known Writer on Medical Subjects.

PART ONE.

FOR almost every bane Nature seems to provide not only an antidote, but a danger signal as well. In the music-hall vernacular, "Every little poison has a warning all its own."

Another and probably stronger reason for the great rarity of death by poison is that the overwhelming majority of poisonous substances of real deadliness, and even a considerable majority of the milder less dangerous poisons, have a disagreeable taste or offensive smell, or irritating effect upon the stomach, which is the real and practical obstacle to their swallowing, whether by accident or concealed in food or drink.

Opium, for instance, and all of its derivatives—morphine, codein, heroin, etc., are so pungently and unmistakably bitter as to arrest even the most careless attention, and when swallowed in large amounts with suicidal intent will not infrequently nauseate the stomach and produce vomiting so as to defeat the ends for which they were taken.

Smuggled into either food or drink, their bitter taste will usually attract attention at once, and if the stomach is emptied or pumped out within half an hour of their swallowing the greater part of them will be recovered before they have been absorbed.

Arsenic, which has about the least taste of any of the deadly poisons, is so poorly soluble in water that it is apt to form a whitish sediment at the bottom of any liquid in which it is given. While if mixed in some solid food like pie, or cake, or meats, and allowed to stand, it develops a curious metallic and even strong garlicky taste, which is very likely to attract attention while the food is being masticated.

Corrosive sublimate in solution has a puckery, strongly metallic taste and could scarcely be swallowed except in tablet form or by mistake for some other medicinal tablet. Furthermore, when swallowed, if the stomach contains any considerable amount of food, as fortunately most healthy stomachs do the greater part of the time, or if milk or eggs can be quickly swallowed, it "strikes" with the albumen of the foods an almost insoluble combination which can be pumped out with a stomach pump or by an emetic almost at leisure.

Prussic acid, the drug supposed to have been used in the Lambert case, has a strong, pungent and distinctive odor of bitter almonds or peach blossoms, which is unmistakable before it comes within a yard of the lips.

This is extremely fortunate, for this drug is the deadliest of all known poisons, both in the rapidity of its action and the smallness of the dose required. Indeed, its action is so uncannily swift and sure that it reminds one of the old fairy tales of magic potions and philtres which had only to touch the lips and the victim fell dead.

In its pure form, which is a gas or ethereal liquid, it is so incredibly poisonous that it is not necessary to put it in the mouth, or even to touch the lips, merely squirting a little of it on the skin of the body will produce instant death, partly by inhalation of the "exploded" vapor into the lungs.

This is one of the drugs used in so-called "poisoned bullets," which are really tiny shells containing a glass capsule of the gas, with some explosive to shatter the glass and so let loose its fumes in the body.

Courage and Good Cheer

Ella Wheeler Wilcox Says

Are Factors for Success

Continuous Dwelling on Troubles Creates Current of Inharmony Which Makes Complete Discord of Life—Divine Power in Every Man Superior to Environment.

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1916, Star Company.

NO matter what your situation in life, you can find pleasant things to think, talk and write about.

Unless you can do this, be dumb, and drop all correspondence. No one wants to hear a recital of your woes.

You may speak of your sorrow, trial or need once to a friend, under certain conditions which compel you to ask advice, sympathy or aid; but let it be only once out of ten times. The other nine occasions, talk of other things. Talk of pleasant subjects which will interest your listener. Control your face and your voice as well as your words.

Keep the whine out of your voice, the droop out of your mouth. I am not addressing these words to those in sudden great sorrow. If you have just seen the door of the tomb close on some one that you worshipped, or been stricken with some awful calamity, you cannot be expected to smile and talk of cheerful things until time accustoms you to the thought of your trouble and softens the pain, as time always does.

Continuous Talk About Troubles Will Make Complete Discord of Life

But the world is full of worries, cares, griefs, anxieties and fears for all of us, if we choose to dwell upon them, and no life is exempt from these things; and if we all talk continually about the troubles which come to vex us we create a current of inharmony which will make a complete discord of life.

If you hold a piece of black paper close before your eyes you shut out all the light of day.

If you put that piece of paper behind you, even though you still hold it, you see the sun.

Just so if you keep your worry of poverty, sickness and failure before your eyes, by thinking and talking of it, you will never see the light of hope, health and success shining upon you.

Thrust these thoughts back—and look for the sun and you will see it.

Each time I write words of this kind I receive scores of letters of protest from people who feel I would deprive them of their chief pleasure—that of talking of their misfortunes. They say, "It is easy for you to give advice—but wait until you try the experience of misfortune yourself."

Nevertheless, I must continue to repeat the philosophy which I know to be as true as God's law of love. I know that persistent hope and courage, a persistent belief in the coming of better things, and a persistent refusal to talk about sickness, failure or despair, will bring success threefold sooner than the same effort without such thoughts.

Person Can Change His Environment by the Divine Power in Himself

I know that the power of mind, when it comes from the Divine mind behind it, can nerve the hand and the brain to do what no merely mortal effort ever achieved.

I know that a continual discussion of ill health, poverty and misfortune is a crime and a sure way to retard and prevent success for yourself or others. And I know that you can change your environment by the Divine Power in yourself, if you develop it.

All things are possible to God's own kin—and each soul is that.

A League of Nations to Enforce Peace

How Neutral Powers Could Aid in the Fulfillment of a Great Hope

By John Bates Clark

Professor of Political Economy, Columbia University.

THE belligerent nations have now fought over a year and a half and can fight as much longer without bankruptcy.

Though they should spend $100,000,000 a day for a thousand consecutive days, their outlays would fall short of their total resources; and if they should fight for ten years, their lands would still remain, with most of their building and other improvements, and so would their railways, harbors, mines and canals.

But what will be the condition of the countries if peace shall come at the end of three years of warfare?

The productive properties that will remain will be mortgaged to the creditors of the States. Taxation will have reached a limit that will confiscate a large share of every income.

There will be need of costly reforms and a demand for them backed by a new and powerful democracy.

Unless something new and effective can be done to make great armaments unnecessary the old rivalry in enlarging them will continue.

One Way of Escape

There is one possible escape from this, and only one—namely, a league of nations that can preserve the peace and make great armaments gradually less necessary. What the world is fighting for now is security against more fighting.

Every nation thinks it more important that peace should stay when it comes than that it should come at any particular time. The Teutons would like to insure this by conquering their enemies and making themselves dominant, and the allies have a like ambition.

In the one case there would be a Pax Romana—a peace by the supremacy of a single power, and in the other there would be peace by a league of a considerable number of the European nations and one Asiatic power.

Conceivably a single union might embrace all of these States. The two warring leagues might lay aside their enmities and form, as it were, a great trust for the protection of mankind. They might bury the hatchet, as rival producers bury it, for their own mutual benefit. That would preserve peace while the great union should last. The conditions that make such a union difficult to form would make it difficult to preserve. It would seethe with jealousies and be in perpetual danger of disruption.

The German power, which has called the rival union into being, may help in an essential way to preserve it. It may furnish a needed bond of union capable of holding the members together until the strength of the union shall be fully developed.

An Advantage

Even a strict neutral can see that the Entente has an advantage over the combination which is opposed to it as the nucleus of a League of Peace.

It is composed of a number of nations of co-ordinate rank, and no one of them has in recent years aspired to conquer another.

There is little danger that the Entente would harbor designs against the independence of the smaller European States. Between the several members there is a certain balance of power, and no one of them would dare make conquests in Europe at the expense of the others. The union could offer to the smaller nations a trustworthy guaranty of their territory and their independence.

With the terrible cost of this war in view and with some such league as the sole guaranty against another one, as well as the sole means of escaping from crushing military burdens, what possible reason is there for not creating it?

If, at the outset, it were necessary that all nations should join it, the difficulties would indeed be serious, but they would be small in the case of a league which should evolve naturally out of an existing combination.

Senate Vote on Warning Displeases Wilson

SENATORS IN BITTER DEBATE

McCumber Denounces Members Who Enlarge on War Peril; the House Vote Comes on Tuesday

Washington, March 4.—That the action of the Senate in tabling the Gore resolution warning Americans off armed ships is far from meeting the views of the President was indicated today by Senator McCumber.

The senator from North Dakota was one of the participants in an acrimonious debate over the submarine controversy which took place today, and which strengthened the belief that the issue is to be settled only after further bitter discussion.

Senator Lodge read a statement furnished him by the British Embassy denying specifically that Great Britain during the Russo-Japanese war had warned its citizens not to ride on the armed merchantmen of the belligerents.

Senator Hitchcock demanded whether Senator Lodge did not know that Sweden already had warned its citizens not to take passage on armed belligerent merchant vessels.

OPPOSES PRESIDENT.

Lodge made no reply and Hitchcock declared that there was ample precedent for action by the United States to warn its citizens not to take passage on any armed ships.

Senator McCumber denounced yesterday's action. He declared that in his opinion the Senate had placed itself on record that the death of an American through the sinking of an armed merchantman without warning

DENY BALFOUR IS TO LEAVE CABINET

By International News Service.

London, March 4. — Reports that Arthur J. Balfour, First Lord of the Admiralty, would retire and be succeeded by Lord Fisher, formerly First Sea Lord, were officially denied today. It was stated that the government had no intention of departing from the custom of having a civilian at the head of the admiralty. The general impression, however, is that a place in the ministry will be found or made for Lord Fisher.

"NO JURISDICTION" IS APPAM ANSWER

Norfolk, Va., March 4.—The German government's reply to the suit instituted by the British owners to recover the liner Appam was filed in court by Lieutenant Hans Berg, commander of the German prize crew, and L. H. von Schilling, German vice-consul. It denied the court's jurisdiction over "a prize of war."

Czar Ferdinand Better.

Amsterdam, March 4.—Vienna dispatches state that Czar Ferdinand of Bulgaria is improving, but that he is still confined to his room. He has been unable to visit Emperor Francis Joseph.

Latest War Bulletins

Paris, March 4.—A French ammunition factory at Lacourneuve, a suburb of Paris, blew up today, the explosion killing and injuring many women and men employed in the manufacture of war munitions. Early reports received at the Prefecture of Police said that the casualties numbered more than 200 and that all available ambulances were needed at the scene.

Athens, March 4.—The revolutionary situation in Turkey, particularly in Constantinople, has become so menacing that an uprising is considered inevitable, according to reliable information received here today. Among the opponents to Enver Pasha, the Minister of War, are Talaat Bey and Rachmi Bey, the Vali of Smyrna, who are both said to be working in favor of an agreement with the allies.

London, March 4.—The Russian steamer Vasilij Velikij, 1,414 tons, has been sunk with a loss of eight lives, including the captain. The ship was formerly a German vessel named the Prinz Gustaf Adolph. It was built in 1897.

Berlin, March 4.—The Admiralty announces that German submarines have sunk two French auxiliary cruisers and a British patrol boat. One of the cruisers was La Provence, the former transatlantic liner.

Rome, March 4.—The Italian Chamber of Deputies gave Premier Salandra's cabinet a vote of confidence of 278 to 40. The vote was given in connection with an attempt to open debate on the war policy.

SUBWAY TIED UP BY DISABLED TROLLEY CAR

Passengers using the new Boylston street subway and the old subway, were seriously inconvenienced, and traffic was tied up for more than thirty minutes, when the motor of an inward-bound semi-convertible Jamaica Plain car blew out half way between the entrance to the subway and the Boylston street station.

The accident took place about 1 o'clock, when traffic was particularly heavy. Cars in the subway and all along Boylston street were stalled while hundreds of passengers waited at Park street until the disabled car was pushed out of the subway by a crowded Ipswich street car coupled to a box car.

WATCHMAKERS ARE HAMPERED BY WAR

Glasgow, March 4.—The jewellers and watchmakers of Glasgow have just announced that owing to every available skilled hand being called upon to undertake government mechanical work or to go to the front, they will not undertake to repair watches unless they are exceptionally valuable, and no work will be done unless two months' notice is given.

NORWEGIAN SHIP SUNK; 6 MISSING

London, March 4.—A dispatch to Lloyds today announced that the Norwegian steamer Egero, 1,373 tons, has been sunk in a collision with another vessel. Ten members of the crew were picked up, but six are missing.

COUNTER DRIVE LAUNCHED BY THE FRENCH

By International News Service.

London, March 4.—Violent counter attacks have been directed by the French against the German positions at Douaumont, northeast of Verdun, with some success.

The German War Office officially announced today that these assaults were "partially repulsed," which is taken here to mean that the French have regained territory, the extent of which is in doubt. The Germans captured one thousand more prisoners forth of Verdun.

Attacks by the French in the Argonne failed.

Southeast of Ypres, the fighting has come to a standstill. The following is the text of the German official report:

"West front—Southeast of Ypres the fighting has come to a standstill. The positions we held before February 14 are once more firmly in our hands.

"A bastion is in the possession of the enemy.

"There is lively fighting in Champagne.

"In the Argonne an attack by the enemy failed.

FUTURE OF ERIN AT STAKE

Boston Men at Big Convention in New York Which Demands Voice for Ireland in Terms of Peace

By International News Service.

New York, March 4. — Three thousand Irishmen and women, from every State in the Union gathered today at the Hotel Astor for an Irish race convention.

The primary object of which was to demand that Ireland have a voice in the peace negotiations to come at the end of the European war.

Twenty-one hundred Irish-Americans and Irishmen in America from coast to coast signed the call for the meeting, and nearly a thousand others came unannounced.

They represented the Ancient Order of Hibernians, the Clan-na-Gael and the Irish Fellowship clubs in all the large cities.

The women in attendance represented the women's auxiliary of the Hibernians.

Among the prominent out-of-town persons were District Attorney Joseph Pelletier and Mayor James M. Curley, both of Boston.

PLEDGE LOYALTY TO U. S.

Loyalty to the United States was the keynote of the meeting. Only the Irish flag, crossed with the Stars and Stripes, decorated the hotel ballroom, where the convention met.

Justice John W. Goff of the Supreme Court of New York, formerly of County Wexford, who presided over the deliberations, said he was prepared at all costs to keep politics out of the discussions.

Dissensions, though, were imminent.

BRITISH GENERAL SLAIN NEAR DAFIUCH

Constantinople, via Berlin wireless to Sayville (Delayed), Official, March 4.—In the recently reported combat near Dafiuch, between Sheikh Aamar and Lakah, the British lost the general among whom was a general and the leader of the landing party.

Some of the coast tribes between Aden and Dafiumant, after the battle of Dafiuch, offered allegiance to the Turkish government. The districts east and west of Aden are now under Turkish domination. British infantry in Aden and Sheikh is now very greatly reduced.

CREW OF TORPEDOED STEAMSHIP SAVED

Stockholm, March 4.—All members of the crew of the Swedish steamer Torborg, sunk in the Mediterranean by a submarine, were saved, it was announced today. The sailors made their way to the Spanish coast in small boats and were picked up.

SPURNED SUITOR HELD

Springfield Man Faces Sanity Test After Being Caught in House with Loaded Revolver

Springfield, March 4.—With a loaded revolver in his pocket, George J. Carney, thirty-two, of Central street, was arrested in the home of his former fiancee, Miss Lean Weidner of Marsden street, where, the police say, he confessed he had gone to take her life.

Carney, who was trailed by the police, was arrested a few minutes after he entered the house, and did not see Miss Weidner, who had been warned of his threats.

He was arraigned in the local court today, pleading guilty to carrying a loaded weapon, and was held in $10,000 pending examination as to his sanity.

According to the police the couple had been engaged for several months, when Miss Weidner, who is in her early twenties and extremely pretty, learned that he had been divorced. She immediately broke their engagement and refused to see him again.

The police were notified that Carney threatened to kill Miss Weidner, and kept him under surveillance. The young woman was also informed of the threats which had been made against her, and avoided the man.

When Carney started for the Weidner home the police were close behind him, and Miss Weidner's family were instructed to allow him to enter. A few minutes later several police inspectors arrived and found Carney seated in the parlor. He was placed under arrest, and a loaded revolver taken from one of his pockets. The police say he admitted that he had gone to the house to kill the girl.

ASSAILS ENGLISH REPORTS ON WAR

By International News Service.

Berlin (by wireless), March 4.—Commenting on English reports that "the central powers are going from bad to worse," after citing various news items, including those telling of disorder in Berlin and friction between Bulgaria and its allies, the Overseas News Agency said today:

"The congenitally optimistic gentleman who writes these reports seems to belong to the family of merry persons who love to exhilarate the spectators of a grim tragedy."

APACHE DISABLED, WITH 150 ABOARD

New York, March 4.—A wireless message from the Clyde liner Apache, bound from Jacksonville, Fla., to New York with 150 passengers on board, stated that the liner had broken a crank shaft while off Cape Henry and is in need of a tow. Officials of the line chartered a tug to go to the Apache's assistance.

U. S. Destroyer Sampson, Most Powerful of Navy, Launched at Fore River

The United States torpedo boat destroyer Sampson was launched at the Fore River yards at noon today. The event is the most powerful of its type in the navy and the greatest that has been launched. The assembly of thousands of the workmen delayed the launching somewhat.

The destroyer bears the name of the late Admiral William T. Sampson, who was commander-in-chief of the Atlantic fleet during the Spanish war.

Miss Marjorie Sampson Smith, granddaughter of the Admiral, stood upon the deck of the destroyer as it slid from the ways.

After the launching there was a reception and luncheon at the Copley Plaza.

The Sampson will be delivered to the government April 1, seven months ahead of contract time.

THRILLING RESCUES IN SURF

Barges Driven Ashore at North Scituate; Crew of One Lost, Five Men on Other Saved

Five men were lost and five men were rescued by life-savers in a double barge wreck in a 45-mile gale off North Scituate shore early today.

The men lost were Captain Ira Montgomery of the barge Kohinoor and his crew of four. The men saved are Captain A. G. Eastrand and crew of four from the barge Ashland.

Captain Eastrand and his men had been on an earlier wreck at rescue in order to let the life-savers go to the aid of the men on the Kohinoor, which was in greater danger.

The life-savers started for the Kohinoor, but were unable to get to it. They picked up one of the crew in the water and brought him ashore. He died from exhaustion and exposure.

The life-savers were unable to get near to the Ashland, and it was only by the keen vision of the seamen and continued skill of the lifesavers that the Ashland's men were later saved from their perilous barge by means of life lines.

Thus the horrid reel on the Ashland, who sent the rescuers along to take their brethren in distress if possible, eventually was hit and reached shore and safety.

The men saved from the Ashland are:

Captain A. G. Eastrand.
Steward Peter C. Dijkstra.
Deckhand Axel C. Nilsen.
Sailors John Madsen and Anthon Hanson, all of Philadelphia.

The five men lost on the Kohinoor also were rescued by the Ashland.

The Kohinoor and Ashland, with a third barge, the Kohinoor, all owned by the Pennsylvania & Reading Coal Company, left Boston yesterday for Norfolk to load coal.

In the gale off the South Shore the tow lost the Kohinoor to the

NEW ARMY BILL REPORT ADMITTED

Washington, March 4.—The Senate interrupted a bitter debate on the national defense bill this afternoon to grant unanimous consent to Senator Chamberlain to favorably report the new army bill. by a submarine would not be legitimate cause for war.

Senator Kern, the majority leader, differed sharply with McCumber. He declared that the intent not to interfere with the President's diplomatic negotiations was not open to misunderstanding.

"That may be so," replied McCumber, "but in my opinion there is only one justification for overruling international law and that is the law of self-preservation. Yesterday's action did not meet the views of the President although for one I believe that the President's position is all wrong."

DENOUNCES WARNING.

Senator Colt, of Rhode Island, denounced any proposition for a warning to Americans.

"Such an act would surrender our greatest protection under international law," he said.

Senator McCumber took exceptions to a suggestion by Senator Colt that warning legislation might precipitate war.

"I am not fearful of war," he fairly shouted. "These belligerents cannot get at us as they cannot loosen their grop on each other for that purpose. Congress reflects public sentiment, and there is no sentiment in the United States for war."

"Does the Senator believe that Germany's ruthless invasion of Belgium was warranted?" demanded Colt. "Was it necessary for her preservation?"

"I am neutral," hotly declared McCumber. "It is not right for an American Senator to ask any such question. I believe that we should be so everlastingly neutral that our motives never could be questioned. I also believe that we should be charitable in discussing motives. We have been in somewhat the same boat ourselves that some of the European belligerents now are."

NO VOTE UNTIL TUESDAY.

House leaders today notified members that there could be no vote on the McLemore warning resolution before Tuesday, March 7.

Members, who wanted to leave Washington, were told that they could go safely if they returned to the capitol by Tuesday morning.

Majority Leader Claude Kitchin announced at 12:45 that there was no possibility of the House reaching the McLemore resolution before Tuesday. He said that any effort to bring the matter up on Monday would meet parliamentary obstacles, which would make consideration of the measure impossible.

Members on the floor of the House pointed out that on Tuesday the Congressional primaries will be held in Indiana and that the vote of members on this resolution would be likely seriously to affect the results there.

It was suggested that a postponement of the vote would be very satisfactory to Indiana members running for renomination.

DENIAL BY TUMULTY.

Joseph P. Tumulty, secretary to the President, today flatly denied reports that President Wilson considered resigning. The following statement was handed out at the White House.

"When Secretary Tumulty's attention was called to the stories appearing in certain papers that the President had resigned or considered resigning he said:

"An American newspaper that would publish a story of that kind in a situation like the one which now confronts America dishonors itself."

FREE HAND FOR PRESIDENT.

The attitude of the White House today is that there is not the slightest doubt but that the President will be given a free hand in his negotiations with the belligerent governments. As a result there was a feeling plainly noticeable in official circles that eventually an amicable agreement with Germany could be reached.

The grave danger, of course, is that while the negotiations—now at a standstill and held up until Congress acts—are pending, a vessel carrying an American citizen will be sunk. This would force an immediate showdown by the administration.

Reports that President Wilson has at last decided that the time is near when the United States can offer its good offices to the belligerents are again being circulated in diplomatic circles here. They find no response at the White House, however.

Attention is called to the fact that Colonel E. M. House will be back here very soon and will report to the President just how the European chancelleries look on the question of peace.

If there is the slightest hope that an offer of mediation will be successful there is no doubt that the President will act, but so far, it is learned upon the highest authority, no evidence has reached here that a peace suggestion would even be considered by the allies.

Warns Kaiser of War With U. S.

Berlin, via Amsterdam, March 4.—Conservative Germans newspapers today took advantage of the opportunity to warn Germany of the dangers of war with the United States, pointing out what would mean the addition of the resources of America to those of the allies.

Herr Haunand, a member of the Reichstag, writing in a Schleswig paper, says:

"America's fleet would be put side by side with that of England's with the increasing possibility of an absolute effective blockade. Several recruiting within six months would produce a formidable American army. German ships in American harbors would be lost. America is daily increasing her financial power and her entrance in the conflict would mean an incalculable prolongation of the war because America could finance the allies for an unlimited period. We cannot shut our eyes to the endless sacrifices that war with the United States would demand."

STADIUM BRIDGE AWARDS AFFIRMED

The commission award of $52,000 with interest, or $61,847 to the Butchers' Slaughtering and Melting Association and $24,781 to Arthur L. Brackett, against the Commonwealth, for damages caused by the erection of the Lars Anderson Stadium over the Charles River, has been sustained by the Full Bench of the Supreme Court.

The claims were for damages to wharf property above the bridge, which has no draw.

3,130 PERISHED IN PROVENCE DISASTER

Paris, March 4.—The disaster which followed the French auxiliary cruiser La Provence's striking a mine in the Mediterranean, February 26, today proves to have been the greatest horror in sea history, it being officially admitted here that 3,130 or more lives were lost.

It was announced at the French Ministry of Marine that there were nearly 4,000 men on board the Provence when she was sunk. About 870 were saved.

It was stated that on board the Provence were the staff of the Third Colonial Infantry Regement, the Third Battalion and Second Company of the First Battalion; the Second Machine Gun Company and one extra company.

NO SIGN OF U-BOAT.

The official statement announcing the sinking of the Provence said:

"The French auxiliary cruiser Provence II (so designated to distinguish her from the French battleship Provence), engaged in transporting troops to Salonica, was sunk in the Mediterranean on February 26. Two hundred and twenty-six survivors have been brought to Malta and about 400 to Melos by French and British vessels summoned by wireless.

"No signs of a submarine were noticed either before or after the sinking. La Provence was armed with five cannon of 14 centimetres, two of 57 millimeters and four of 47 millimeters."

The loss of more than 2,000 lives in the sinking of the French auxiliary cruiser Provence is the greatest ocean disaster of modern times. Up to the present the largest number of lives ever lost in one wreck was when the White Star liner Titanic struck an iceberg off Newfoundland on April 14, 1912, and sank with a loss of 1,595. The rescued numbered 745.

PROVENCE OUTFITTED.

The French Ministry of Marine had previously given out no statement as to the number of persons on the Provence when she went down.

The vessels, however, when in the transatlantic service could carry 1,989 persons, including her crew, and it had been presumed that she was transporting troops between ports not far distant apart. She was carrying a number of men larger than her normal capacity.

WAR SUMMARY

Tremendous German guns, believed to be even more powerful than the 42-centimetre weapons which smashed Liege and Namur, have destroyed the permanent fortifications northwest of Verdun, bulletins today indicated.

Fort Douaumont was smashed before the Germans captured it. Fort Moulainville has met a similar fate, being rendered untenable by the rain of shells, and Fort Vaux has been splintered into bloody fragments.

The French defensive reliance is now almost solely upon trench warfare, and barbed wire, mined fields, electric conduits and the like block the way of the German advance. By the time the Germans charge, their way has been prepared by a bombardment that makes the ground in front of them a mere heap of rubble, as though it had been plowed by a gigantic plow.

The German infantry attacks have again pushed the French backward. Official reports today from both sides showed a distinct Germain gain, and the German troops are now battering at the gates of what remains of Fort Vaux. French counter attacks temporarily check the German drive, but have not succeeded in wholly halting it.

The city of Verdun is now open to bombardment, and it will probably be reduced to ruins by German shells as have other cities on the firing line.

Berlin officially announced today that a German submarine sank the transport La Provence, where some 3,100 French soldiers were lost. This most horrible of all marine disasters of history is by the same token the most considerable military success the German submarines have attained since the sinking of the Aboukir, the Cressy and the Hogue, early in the war.

Berlin said another French vessel and a British patrol boat had also been submarined. Otherwise the German campaign against armed merchantmen has had no fruit.

Russia has taken Bitlis, a town of some importance in southern Armenia. The capture of this place indicates a considerable German advance since Erzerum fell, as Bitlis is about 110 miles southeast of Erzerum. However, the troops that took Bitlis came not from Erzerum but from the detachments which have been operating in the Lake Van region. The booty and the prisoners taken in Bitlis were not important.

The British have consolidated their gains in Flanders, but announce no new attack.

Constantinople reports minor successes in the vicinity of Aden, the British post which dominates the eastern end of the Red Sea and the Suez route.

IRISHMEN DENOUNCE BRITAIN

J. P. O'Mahoney of Indianapolis had drawn up a resolution that the convention appoint a committee consisting of one delegate from each State to wait upon the Foreign Relations Committee of the Senate to ask that the government co-operate in carrying out such resolutions as the Irish race convention might adopt.

"The time to act is now for America and Ireland, and the freedom of the seas," said O'Mahoney. "A free Ireland would mean an American coaling station in Europe."

Before he began his set speech, which was a subtle indirect attack on England concealed in an attack on the Irish Nationalists in Parliament, Justice Goff said:

FATE IN BALANCE.

"We are here to ascertain, if possible, what the real Irish people at home want. We do not know. We are thoroughly loyal to the United States. We are not here to aid Germany. The Irish in America have aided Ireland with money and with men. We believe that Ireland is entitled to participate in the negotiations ending the war. Ireland's fate hangs in the balance, but we can do nothing until we understand the attitude of the Irish at home.

"I am prepared to keep down all discussions and strife, and there will be no reply on the floor to the protests of the so-called United Irish Societies."

Justice Goff's speech in part follows:

"In our day there has not arisen such an emergency as now demands that American citizens of Irish birth or blood express themselves in unmistakable language toward the great struggle that is now convulsing Europe, in so far as the present and future interests of Ireland may be affected.

"Because of the widespread misrepresentations of our attitude and the falsification of the conditions of Ireland, we are called upon to speak in defence of truth.

He pointed out the difficulty of Irishmen in America learning of the present attitude of Ireland, save through the dispatches censored by the English authorities, which, he said, gave the impression that the old-time hostility of Ireland to England had changed to loyalty.

"I am loath to believe this," he said. "Except on irrefragible evidence. We refuse to believe that the Irish people have renounced their allegiance to Ireland, for the following reasons:

DEMAND THE TRUTH.

"The faith we have in the fidelity to the Irish race in the progress of national freedom, the drastic suppression of all manifestations of free thought in Ireland by either tongue or pen; the maintenance of a huge garrison, found necessary to over-awe the people at a time when the army is badly needed in other fields; notwithstanding the exclusive English control of all agencies of intelligence and the falsification approved by the censor, we know from reliable sources that in spite of jail and coercion the heart of Ireland still rings true.

"Therefore, we in America, who have furnished moral and material aid, have a right to know and express the truth and further to express our knowledge of the falsity of the statement in the British House of Commons that 85 per cent of the Irish were in favor of England in the present conflict."

Victor Herbert of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick called the convention to order and introduced Justice Goff. Monsigner Henry D. Ryan of St. Agnes Church, New York, offered the invocation.

MEN OF MILLIONS IN AUSTRALIAN CORPS

London, March 4.—It is estimated that there are more millionaires in the ranks of the Australian troops than in any other contingent of the British army. Many rich ranch owners and mine owners have given up their business to go to the front. Two sons of Hugh Denison, an Australian multi-millionaire, have just arrived from Melbourne to enlist in the Royal Horse Artillery. Mr. Denison is head of the British Australian Tobacco Company.

BACKACHE WARNS YOU TO WATCH YOUR KIDNEYS

Do you feel tired and "worn-out"? Are you nervous and irritable? Don't sleep well at night? Have a "dragged-out," unrested feeling when you get up in the morning? Dizzy spell? Bilious? Bad taste in the mouth, backache, pain or soreness in the loins and abdomen? Severe distress when urinating, bloody, cloudy urine or sediment? All these indicate gravel, or stone in the bladder, or that the poisonous microbes which are always in your system have attacked your kidneys.

You should use GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules immediately. The oil soaks gently into the walls and lining of the kidneys and the little poisonous animal germs which are causing the inflammation are immediately attacked and chased out of your system without inconvenience or pain.

GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules are imported direct from the laboratories in Holland. They are prepared in correct quantity and convenient form to take, and are positively guaranteed to give prompt relief, or your money will be refunded. Get them at any drug store, but be sure to insist on the GOLD MEDAL brand, and take no other.

Do not delay a minute. Go to your druggist and insist upon his supplying you with a box of GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules. In 24 hours you will feel renewed health and vigor. After you have cured yourself, continue to take one or two Capsules each day so as to keep in first-class condition and ward off the danger of future attacks. Money refunded if they do not help you. Ask for the original imported GOLD MEDAL brand and thus be sure of getting the genuine.

'Verdun Defence Must Be Along Entire Front'

By GEORGES CLEMENCEAU, Former Premier of France.

Paris, March 4.

THE unprecedented effort at Verdun for which the Kaiser is making his final preparations will probably be accompanied by vigorous attacks at several other points on our front similar to the recent offensive in Champagne.

Any advantage the Kaiser can gain anywhere, however slight and transient, will undoubtedly encourage his efforts at Verdun.

It is to be hoped at this time our generals will realize that Verdun must be defended not alone at Verdun, but along our entire front

Liner Cretic, Gun Aboard, Now in Submarine Zone

With a 4-inch gun set up on board and in charge of British naval gunners, the steamship Cretic of the White Star line, which sailed from Boston with 350 passengers on February 21, entered the Mediterranean submarine zone today.

While no report of her arrival at Gibraltar has been received it is believed that she has reached there and proceeded on schedule time.

Some of her passengers were disembarked, the mails landed and the gun taken aboard. Today she is thought to be proceeding through the most dangerous part of her course.

The journey to Naples will take about three days.

When the liner left here, the only American booked all the way through to Italy was the Rev. Thomas J. Jackson of Indiana, and a relative of "Stonewall" Jackson.

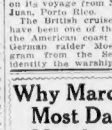
Mrs. D. Mazzuchi, wife of an Italian diplomat, and her young daughter, the only passengers on the boat, Mrs. Mazzuchi has been here collecting supplies for the Italian military hospitals.

BRITISH WARSHIP AND LINER CRASH

New York, March 4.—The Brazilian steamer Sergipe reported by wireless today that it was in collision with a British cruiser about fifty miles south of Sandy Hook at 2:15 o'clock this morning. Neither ship was badly damaged and the Sergipe proceeded on its voyage from New York to San Juan, Porto Rico.

The British cruiser is believed to have been one of the vessels sent to the American coast to hunt for the German raider Moewe. The radiogram from the Sergipe failed to identify the warship.

Why March is the Most Dangerous Month.



March is the most dangerous month of the year because the change of season is more than a good many systems can stand. Too often it is true that the sick "don't get well till spring." But if the system is fortified, if the impurities are driven from the blood and the nerve tissues fed with wholesome and strength-giving food medicine, there is no danger in the change of seasons. Father John's Medicine is invaluable as a tonic in the spring. It strengthens the system and drives out the poisonous waste matter—builds up the body. It is this power that has made it so successful for colds and throat troubles. No weakening stimulants, morphine or other dangerous drugs or alcohol.—Advertisement.

FRENCH IN COUNTER ATTACK

at close range, and heavy losses are being inflicted upon the French.

"The booty taken by us since February 22 (the second day of the battle of Verdun) amounts to 115 guns and 161 machine guns.

"Near Oberlepot, northwest of Flirt (upper Alsace), the enemy attempted to recapture a position taken from him on February 13. The first attack was partially successful, the enemy succeeding in getting into some of our trenches. However, he was immediately ejected and was prevented by a curtain of fire from repeating the attacking on a broad scale. At some places local attacks developed, but the enemy suffered heavy losses and we took eighty prisoners.

"At the conclusion of the fighting the French were compelled to retreat to their former position.

"East front—In a small engagement at Alsseiwitsch, northeast of Baranowitch, the Russians were driven out of their positions.

"Italian front—There is nothing to report."

Baranovitch is a railway junction a little more than 100 miles south of Vilna.)

The text of the French communique follows:

"The bombardment, which was rather active during the night in different sectors of the Verdun region, was not followed by any infantry action on the part of the enemy. At Eparges we prevented the enemy from occupying a crater caused by the explosion of a mine.

"There is nothing to report on the rest of the front except the usual cannonade."

Throughout the night the artillery duel raged with unceasing fury around Verdun. The Germans had evidently brought up fresh artillery and the salvos of these guns were answered by the French who exchanged shell for shell with enemy.

The Germans have been able to make more secure their hold on Fort Douaumont by the capture of the village, but the French immediately made counter attacks which were carried out under the eyes of General Joffre. Despite the pressence of the supreme commander, the French troops fought with the ardor of heroes and swept forward into the withering artillery fire of the Germans.

After packing most of their dead on empty ammunition trains to be sent into Germany for cremation the German regiments that have been in Verdun with artillery preparation which the French War Office described as "intensely violent."

During the lull in the fighting the German dead strengthened their positions by digging trenches, and opening up communication roduubts so that fresh troops could be sent to the front without being exposed to the cross-fire of the French artillery.

Melting snows and floods had turned the roads behind the German lines to stretches of quagmire, and it was necessary for the Germans to build plank roads with timber before they could move their reinforcements of guns to the front. The road-making had to be carried out after darkness fell in order to avoid danger from the French 75s.

Three fresh divisions of troops drawn from Belgium, Russia and Serbia, were hurled against the French positions in the new drive. This attack centred upon Douaumont plateau at a point where the village stood before it was leveled by the big German guns. Three crossroads converge there, giving it importance of a high strategic order.

DAUGHTER OF CROKER ELOPES

By International News Service.

New York, March 4.—Miss Ethel J. Croker, daughter of Richard Croker, has ventured once more into matrimony. Friends say that the daughter of the former boss of Tammany Hall was married early last week to Thomas F. White of Cedarhurst, well-known member of the younger Long Island social set.

The marriage is shrouded in as much mystery as her elopement to New Jersey six years ago with John J. Breen, an attendant upon horses. She won an uncontested divorce from Breen on May 20, 1912, and then resumed her maiden name.

The second marriage of the temperamental young Croker heiress was strictly a "family romance" her friends say. One of these, a well-known Long Island society woman, says:

"Mr. White was Ethel's brother-in-law. His sister, Gertrude, married Ethel's brother, Howard Croker. Ethel admitted the marriage but she would give no details. She and her husband have gone South, to Palm Beach I believe."

MARRIED IN SECRET.

Elsewhere it is rumored that the marriage was performed in Cold Spring Harbor. None of the members of the Croker family are in town and none can be reached out of town.

Mr. and Mrs. White, it is said, have been friends for years. They are about the same age, twenty-six. Miss Croker, a handsome girl of heroic type, has often been seen at the meets of the Rockaway Hunt Club, of which "Tom" White is a member.

Recently the couple have been noticed motoring over the frozen Long Island roads. Friends noted a marked shade of change in their demeanor and the wise ones were certain that Ethel had recovered from her first unfortunate matrimonial venture.

According to the best information that can be obtained the couple motored to Cold Spring Harbor or to some other remote village and were married. They went almost immediately to New York, it is said, and embarked for the South.

Mr. White's family are perhaps the wealthiest residents of Cedarhurst. His father, the late Thomas F. White, left an estate valued at $2,000,000. Mr. White lives with his mother, Mrs. Katherine White.

ELOPED SIX YEARS AGO.

Mrs. White created a sensation when she eloped on April 28, 1910, to Hoboken with her riding instructor, "Jack" Breen. Miss Croker's name had been previously coupled in rumored alliances with members of the British and Italian aristocracy.

Her marriage to Breen shocked society. For several days after the wedding denial was made that they had been married. The couple never lived together. Reluctant admissions finally were wrung from Mr. and Mrs. Breen.

Soon the young wife sailed for Europe. Breen blamed his wife's family for interference and filed suit for $100,000 against Richard Croker and his sons, Richard Croker, Jr., and Howard Croker, for the alleged alienation of Mrs. Breen's affections.

Mrs. Breen's suit for divorce was brought up twice in the Supreme Court in this county. The jury disagreed on the first trial. The second trial resulted in an uncontested verdict for Mrs. Breen.

In the first trial one witness quoted Breen as declaring that Mr. Croker had offered him $50,000 not to contest his wife's suit. The witness quoted Breen as saying: "When he gives me $100,000 I'll sign a receipt with both hands."

ACCUSED PASTOR DEFIES POLICE

New York, March 4.—Rev. Ferrer Martyn, the preacher arrested here on a charge of inducing Vera Davis, a young negro girl, to leave her home in St. Louis, defied the authorities today to take any action on his case. He declared that he had married the girl and that her mother, on whose complaint he was arrested, would be unable to press any charge against him. The girl, who has been working as a maid, corroborated the preacher's statement as to the marriage and said the ceremony had been performed in New Jersey.

SCHOOL BILL JUST HOME RULE, SAYE LEE

Joseph Lee of the Boston School Committee has given out the following statement: "I see that the papers in their report of the hearing on House bill 1437 spoke of it as a 'bill to abolish the board of superintendents of the Boston schools.' The bill is not that. It is merely to permit the Boston School Committee to decide whether or not it will continue a form of organization resulting in divided responsibility and condemned by expert opinion. It is simply a question of home rule."

HAUL BALTIMORE LINER OFF SHOALS

Baltimore, Md., March 4.—The Chesapeake line steamer City of Baltimore, bound from Norfolk to Baltimore, with a passenger list of 144 and crew of 78, which went hard aground on Hampton Bar in Hampton Roads during a heavy snow storm last night, was hauled off the shoals this morning by the coast guard cutter Onondaga and the tug Louisville. The City of Baltimore is proceeding up the bay under her own steam, bound for this port.

Come on in Girls, the Water's Fine---So Are Bathing Suits

©INTERNATIONAL FILM SERVICE.

Samples of what will be seen at Greater Boston Beaches this Summer—the suits, not the girls; for the young women are Californians. But the styles will be the same in Boston as shown in the photograph.

Coming events cast their fashions before, as well as their shadows, particularly in bathing circles.

Witness the lively bathing suit effects which are scheduled to charm the spectators along Greater Boston beaches this Summer.

Stripes will have the call. Horizontal stripes, vertical ones and even diagonal, judging from advance notes from the California beaches, where Summer is practically perennial.

In the two-piece effects it is quite nifty to have horizontal stripes on the jersey and vertical ones on the skirt, or the "knickers," or whatever garment is used to supplement the jersey.

Another diversion is having a suit of solid color, with a vertical striped belt and horizontal stripes edging the skirt.

An equally charming costume shows horizontal stripes for the main "motif," as modistes, artists and composers say, with a cute little yoke of vertical stripes jauntily outlining the neck.

The short skirt fashion finds full play in the beach styles. Between the gaiety of the stripes, the brevity of the skirts and the all-around snappishness of the bathing suit architecture, the Boston bathing season promises to be a sartorial success.

N. B.—The State Police and other regulators of beach attire are yet to be heard from.

WHITMAN HEARD IN BEHALF OF BRANDEIS

Washington, March 4.—William Whitman of Boston was the first witness at the Senate committee hearing today in the Brandeis investigation.

He told the committee that Mr. Brandeis, whose qualifications for the United States Supreme Court are being investigated, had aided him in the preparation of his defence against the charge of lobbying before the Ways and Means Committee in connection with the wool schedule, when the lobby inquiry was under way in 1913.

Mr. Brandeis merely acted as his personal counsel in this matter, he said, and had nothing whatever to do with his efforts to secure modifications in tariff bills. "Mr. Brandeis and I," he said, "were on opposite sides of economic questions."

Mr. Whitman also told the committee of his relations with Mr. Brandeis in the Equitable insurance agitation in 1905. The witness gave no testimony adverse to Mr. Brandeis.

William H. Ingersoll, South Orange, N. J., was the next witness. He said he had helped to organize the Fair Trade League, and was a [illegible] when he appeared before the committees. Mr. Brandeis appeared at the same time, he added, but received no compensation from the Ingersoll firm or the league in the movement to secure the passage of an anti price-cutting bill.

BUTLER FIGHTS BROOKLINE THIEF

Search is being made today for a burglar who entered the home of Dr. Frederick M. Spaulding, Evans road, Brookline, brutally beat up Herbert Cutting, the butler, and then escaped with two valuable rings.

Cutting was clubbed into insensibility when he attempted to block the burglar's flight. In the struggle the latter dropped a large amount of jewelry he had collected in the house. Two children were at play in the parlor on the first floor when the burglar entered. They saw him coming down the stairs, just as the butler came from the kitchen. The children screamed and Cutting at once grappled with the man.

The burglar kept working his way toward the kitchen but was unable to break the butler's hold. In the kitchen he drew the club and pounded Cutting over the head until the latter was felled.

The Brookline police arrived on the scene a few minutes later but no trace of the burglar was found.

He is described as a dark man about twenty-five years old and well built.

Dash Across Burning Bridge Saves Passengers

By International News Service.

Watertown, S. D., March 4.—Throwing on full steam when he discovered a high trestle beneath his engine was burning, Engineer Robert Maxwell, of a South Dakota Central train, saved the lives of all but two of his passengers early today.

The last two cars of the train went down with the trestle. The other four coaches caught fire and were destroyed. Maxwell was severely hurt when his engine jumped the tarck. The dead are: George S. Lovejoy, mail clerk, of Watertown, and F. F. Dooling, salesman, of Denver.

Engineer Maxwell did not notice the flames until his engine, running at thirty miles an hour, was on the structure. Then realizing the impossibility of stopping he pulled the throttle wide open.

The bridge collapsed while two of the cars, both empty, were yet on the structure and they plunged to a gully forty feet below. The engine and the four remaining cars overturned when they reached solid ground and rolled down an embankment.

Twenty minutes after the wreck occurred the entire train and the trestle were reduced to ashes and a mass of twisted rails.

Back Bay Man Weds Governess at St. Paul's

Mss Nora Kathleen Johnston, formerly a governess in the family of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Sears of No. 179 Beacon street, and Stanley W. Smith of the Back Bay were married today at St. Paul's Cathedral, the Rev. Howard Key Barstow of Cohasset officiating.

Mr. Smith is forty-six, the bride twenty-eight. She came to this country five years ago from County Antrim, Ireland. Her father, John Brett Johnston of Ballycastle, Ireland, was agent for Lord Massarine's estates and later of the Manor House, Ballycastle.

Only a few intimate friends were present at the ceremony today. Pierpont L. Stackpole and Frederick G. Hopkins were the ushers.

FIND ROBBER AT SAFE IN PARK ST. STORE

Surprised in the act of drilling the safe in the Mary Elizabeth candy store in the Park Street Church basement, one of the most famous corners in Boston, an unknown burglar escaped through the Park street door and fled down Tremont street.

Patrolman Walter Andrews of the Court Square station, saw snow tracks across the Granary Burial Grounds early today. He saw that someone had scaled the fence and observed that the snow tracks led to the Park Street Church.

Andrews summoned Patrolman Dobbratz and the two officers climbed the wall and followed the tracks. They found that they led to a rear window in the Mary Elizabeth establishment. The robber had squeezed through the barred windows, where four bars are set eight inches apart.

Neither policeman could follow the lead of the burglar and they ran to the Park street door of the store.

The robber, however, had heard the noise and escaped. The policemen found tracks in the snow leading down Tremont street, but no sign of the man could be found.

One cash drawer was open and empty. Another was open but several dollars left untouched. In the corner of the room the robber had tipped over a small safe and started drilling.

The police did not know how much was taken from the tills, nor how much the safe contained. They notified the management of the store and a general alarm was sent to all police stations in the city.

HIRED TO MURDER EIGHT IN STRIKE

New York, March 4.—Three confessed gunmen, under arrest at police headquarters, admitted today that they had been hired to murder eight men acting as guards for striking girl shirt makers. One of the victims of their bullets lies at death's door in a hospital.

The men under arrest are William Sherwood, William Fisher and Richard Harrison, all members of the notorious gang called the "Hudson Dusters." The man whom they shot is Benjamin Weinstein.

UNITARIAN ISLAND FUND IS GROWING

Worcester Unitarians are trying to raise $15,000 to get possession of Star Island, one of the isles of Shoals. The full amount needed is $40,000. Of this $25,596.66 has been promised. Next week several social affairs will be held in Worcester to raise funds. The chairman of the fund is Carl B. Wetherell, No. 20 Alden road, Watertown, Mass.

POLICEMAN AND BURGLAR SHOT

Utica, N. Y., March 4.—In a running battle between two policemen and a youthful burglar today, John Steph, a patrolman was shot through the right leg, and Albert Sherwood, seventeen, was shot in the right hip. Sherwood was arrested.

ROCHESTER HIGH SCHOOL IS BURNED

Rochester, N. Y., March 4.—Fire today destroyed the Pittsford High School. The loss was $25,000. No pupils were in the building at the time.

CURLEY KILLED OWN BILL

That the Mayor accidentally "killed" a bill which he favored became known at City Hall today, when the Harbor and Land Commissioners, together with all the South Boston representatives, flocked into the Mayor's office today and asked for explanations.

The bill was offered at the State House by Representative Monahan and gave permission to the city of Boston to borrow inside or outside the debt limit $575,000, for the purpose of completing long proposed improvements on the Strandway, South Boston. The Mayor not only approved the bill but had Corporation Counsel Sullivan appear in favor of it.

The bill passed both branches of the State government and when it reached the Governor, he telephoned the Mayor to learn his attitude on the bill. The Mayor said he understood from the Governor's office that the bill provided for borrowing the money only outside the debt limit.

"It's a bad bill," said the Mayor, whereupon the Governor promptly vetoed it.

The news of the veto was read in the papers and the South Boston representatives today wanted to know why the Mayor was opposed to his own bill. Explanations were made, and the same bill will be offered again before the Legislature, as the best way out of the predicament.

'HAPPY' GETS MORE STARS FOR CABARET

All roads will lead to Convention Hall next Friday evening, March 10, when the Happy Twenty will hold their annual concert, ball and cabaret. The affair is now less than a week away and Happy, King of the Newsies," is working day and night securing talent for the cabaret.

Prominent State and city officials have been invited to attend, and every effort is being made to make the affair the best and biggest yet held by this organization.

The dance this year will have features never before introduced in Boston. Among them will be the famous "Fashion Plate," which Happy says is "the greatest stunt ever seen in Boston."

Just what this mysterious "Fashion Plate" is, has not as yet been divulged by "Happy," but he has intimated in more ways than one that it is a new idea for which both New York and Paris are partly responsible.

A concert will start off the evening's entertainment. The band, which will furnish the music for the dancing, will be led by "Alexander the Great." The dancing will be continuous from 9 until 2.

At 10 o'clock the cabaret starts. It will be in charge of Bill Lang, who assures all of an excellent program. There will be monologists, singing and dancing acts, soloists of both sexes, quartets, exhibitions of the newest steps and many other features requisite to a first-class cabaret.

One of the latest stars secured for the cabaret by "Happy" and Bill Lang is George MacFarlane, leading man of the "Heart o' th' Heather," now playing in Boston.

Among others who will take part in the cabaret are many well known Boston entertainers. Some of them are: Esther Ray, Billy Gleason, Billy Murray, Sophine Bennett, Della Tuttle, the Feist Entertainers, Abel Baer Ray, Victor Viverios, Jack Ewatt, Zarita, Helen Roberts and Jennie Quinn.

LANNIN EMPLOYE IS ASPHYXIATED

Patrick H. Cahill, employed by President Joseph J. Lannin of the Boston Red Sox to do odd jobs around some of the Lannin apartment house properties, was found dead in bed from gas asphyxiation in his lodging at No. 25 Woodlawn street, Forest Hills, today.

Cahill had roomed there three days. Frank Leonard, landlord, discovered the death at 6:30. Two gas jets in the room were open. Medical Examiner Leary was notified. Cahill was thirty-eight years old. His wife lives at No. 222 Greenwood avenue, Beverly.

INDUSTRIAL AWARD TO INSANE PATIENT

Patrick Crowley, an inmate of the Danvers Insane Hospital, formerly employed as a laborer by the City of Lowell and incapacitated by a cave-in in a trench where he was working, is entitled to $8 a week for 500 weeks, through his guardian, Sarah A. Crowley, as awarded by the Industrial Accident, under a decree of the Supreme Court. The accident to Crowley occurred on November 9, 1914.

FURNITURE DEALER APPEAL SSENTENCE

Isaac Spector, furniture dealer, at No. 1017 Washington street, South End, was sentenced to nine months in the House of Correction in Municipal Court for the larceny of $50 from Mrs. Florence McNalley of No. 109 Warrenton street, South End.

WOMAN WHO SLEW SON ENDS OWN LIFE

Auburn, N. Y., March 4.—Mrs. Edith J. Melber, who was serving a term of not less than twenty years in Auburn Prison for killing her five-year-old son, committed suicide today by hanging herself in a punishment cell to which she had been committed for insubordination.

BIRMINGHAM WANTS EVANGELIST SUNDAY

Baltimore, March 4.—Billy Sunday is considering an invitation to go to Birmingham, Ala., to conduct revival services in that city. The evangelist said he was much interested in that section of the South and that it was likely he would accept. However, he has engagements in other cities that fill in the time until 1918.

Backache Often Follows a Cold

MORE aching backs, more kidney troubles come in March than in any other month. Slushy sidewalks, dampness, raw winds and sudden changes cause chills and colds, and colds or chills tend to hurt the kidneys. It is good sense to use a kidney remedy when recovering from a cold, and at any time when suffering lame back, sharp pains when stooping or lifting, dizzy spells, irregular or annoying kidney action, and a run-down, nervous state. Don't delay and take a chance of getting dropsy, gravel, Bright's or some other serious kidney disease. Use Doan's Kidney Pills, the reliable kidney tonic that is so strongly recommended by Greater Boston people.

Boston People Tell of Quick Relief

Market Street (Cambridge)

Oscar P. Williams, 59 Market st., says: "I was so bad with my back that I couldn't lift anything and I had to quit work. At night my rest was disturbed by a dull, nagging ache through the small of my back. In the morning I got up feeling lame and stiff all over, had no ambition and was tired and languid. The kidney secretions caused me much annoyance by being too frequent in passage. They were highly colored also, and contained sediment. Doan's Kidney Pills cured me."

Washington Street

Mrs. Bessie McIntire, [illegible] Washington street, says: "About two years ago I was suffering from my back, caused by weak kidneys. I could not lift anything and even my housework made me [illegible]. At night I awakened many times with my back aching, and when I got up in the morning it was very stiff and lame. I felt [illegible] and languid. I took many medicines but none of them did me any good until I got Doan's Kidney Pills at Riker-Jaynes Drug Co. Four boxes cured me."

Sumner Street (East Boston)

J. A. [illegible], [illegible] Sumner street, says: "Riding so much in an elevator and being hurt at one time in my back caused my kidneys to get weak. The kidney secretions were too frequent in passage and I had to get up often at night, which broke my rest. Several years ago a doctor told me that my kidneys would never get well. Nothing I took seemed to do me any good until I began using Doan's Kidney Pills. It required only a few boxes to cure me, and I have not had any trouble since."

Washington St. (Somerville)

Mrs. M. E. Prescott, 202 Washington street, says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills off and on for a long time, and they have been of wonderful help to me. At times my kidneys were weak and caused a great deal of trouble and worry. I was weak and lame in the small part of my back, and the kidney secretions were too frequent in passage, causing me a great deal of annoyance. I don't know what I could have done had it not been for Doan's Kidney Pills. Every time I have gotten a box at the Riker-Jaynes Co.'s store, they have never failed to relieve me."

E. Fourth St. (South Boston)

H. H. Roberts, [illegible] E. Fourth street, says: "I suffered from a bad case of kidney trouble, the chief symptom being weakness of the kidneys. When I passed the kidney secretions there was a scalding sensation and they were too frequent both day and night. I finally began using Doan's Kidney Pills and they promptly gave me relief."

NINE YEARS LATER Mr. Roberts said: "I have had no occasion to use Doan's Kidney Pills for some time now, as my kidneys have given me no trouble."

Adams Place (Roxbury)

Mrs. Daniel P. Murphy, [illegible] Adams place, says: "I suffered greatly from backache day and night. I was stiff and lame on getting up in the morning and it hurt me terribly to try to put on my shoes. I suffered intensely from severe headaches and dizzy spells. Often I had to lie down during the day, as I had no ambition and felt weak and tired. The kidney secretions were unnatural. Finally I used five boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills and they cured me."

ROPER'S WIFE DEFENDS HIM FROM CHARGE OF SLAYING

ously. He admitted that the youth had "his faults." But he declared it impossible that he would seek his father's death, and said furthermore that a perfect alibi would be established.

Mr. Wilson quoted his client as exclaiming, when talking of the case: "What, I kill my father, who was so good to me?"

The lawyer hinted that rigorous "third degree" methods may have trapped the youth into some inaccuracies in accounting for his exact whereabouts on the murder night. Meanwhile the public is asked to suspend judgment.

DEFENDED BY COUNSEL.

Mr. Wilson's statement was as follows:

"The police have made a grave error in arresting Albert J. Roper. When the opportunity is presented we shall establish the young man's innocence by locating him in Boston at 10 o'clock on the night of the murder.

"We have evidence on the Boston end of this extraordinary case that will clearly establish the defendant's whereabouts at the time the murder is alleged to have taken place.

"Meanwhile we ask the public to suspend judgment. One side only has been heard thus far.

"I have had talks with Roper and the Roper family. The impression that Roper is indifferent to his father's death and that there is lack of close family relationship generally is entirely unjust, so far as I am concerned.

"As counsel for the late Mr. Roper I had some opportunity to learn that his home life was happy and that he was a splendid husband and father.

"It is a fact that young Roper had on occasion to seek his father's guidance and assistance at times. He regarded his father as a true friend, which in fact he was.

APPEALS FOR CLIENT.

"Young Roper has had his faults, no question about it. He has been out with the boys perhaps, he has played a game of cards and a game of pool now and then, and, of course, he has been a bowling enthusiast.

"But to for an instant entertain a charge that the boy is connected in no one has ever been able to say a word in criticism.

"In conversation with me young Roper has expressed more grief at the death of his father.

"'What, I kill my father, who was so good to me?' he exclaimed when we were discussing it.

"It may be true that under constant and persistent grilling he has made statements not literally and accurately true, but that is only natural. The ordinary man, under circumstances, does not always find it easy to say just where he was at a certain time on a certain day, and it would not be at all surprising if, under these extraordinary circumstances, Roper did fail to account to the minute for his whereabouts on certain days.

"We consider that we have a perfect alibi, in which disinterested testimony will appear. Meanwhile it is only fair to the defendant and the Roper family to suspend judgment as to the murder of Mr. Roper."

WIFE AIDS ROPER.

Mrs. Albert J. Roper, the young wife of the defendant, who has been estranged from him nearly a year and who has been working as a nurse in the Westboro State Hospital, is at the Roper home in Taylorsburg, eager to be reconciled with her husband again and to show her belief in his innocence.

She declared that her husband was never the sort of man to be guilty of the charge against him. She corroborated Roper's mother and his brothers and sister in their statement that Albert Junior had never quarrelled with his father, and that there was no resentment between the two, although the father had sometimes disagreed with the son as to the propriety of some of the son's actions.

She explained that her desire for a reconciliation, while young Roper had sought her for a year in vain, was partly to check any reports that their family differences were the cause of any dissension between her husband and his father.

She declares that the police have blundered, and have jumped at the first solution of the mystery offering itself, trying really to arrest a prisoner, instead of endeavoring to bring home punishment to the real murderer.

Supporting her in this denunciation of the police is Mrs. Albert W. Roper, widow of the slain florist, who declares that it was terrible enough to lose her husband, without having to endure the other affliction of seeing one of her boys charged with his murder.

BROTHERS PROTEST CHARGE.

His three brothers, Mark, Fred and Arthur, and his sister, Elsie, join in the protestations of their mother that there is innocent of the charges against him. They denied, too, the statements that Albert and his father had quarrelled. About these reports Mark Roper said:

"All these stories as to quarrels between Albert and father are pieces of imagination. Father did scold Albert from time to time as to his conduct, and did protest against some of his acts, but there never were any quarrels and there was no resentment between them.

"I believe the police have made a grave mistake, and all the people in Taylorsburg think so, too. We have a very different theory from that advanced by the police."

Mrs. Roper was in Boston Wednesday at the Flower Exchange. There she bought flowers to be sent to the funeral. Later some of them were found in the room of Albert Roper, who, it is believed, had gone to the home of the murdered man to get the money and followed him here.

Today is the wedding day of Miss Elinor Virginia Pierce, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace D. Pierce of Prescott street, and Nelson Curtis, son of Mr. Nelson Curtis of Jamaica Plain. The marriage was at Trinity Church with the Rev. Arthur Lawrence Kinsley officiating and was attended only by the members of the two families and a few intimate friends.

Mrs. John D. Pearson, sister of the bride, and Mrs. Charles Sinclair Weeks were the matrons of honor. The best man was Charles Sinclair Weeks, Harvard '14, and a classmate of Mr. Curtis. The ushers were Vassar Pierce, Harvard '07, a brother of the bride; Bulkeley Smith of Worcester, Harvard '13; Willard Smith of Worcester, William Emery-Bright, Jr., and Talbot G. F. Freeman, all classmates of Mr. Curtis; and Hugh Nawn, Jr.

Following the honeymoon the young people will make their home in Baltimore.

5 PERISH AND 5 ARE SAVED IN BARGE WRECK

and Kohinoor go adrift. The tug still towing the Kimberton, was unable to help them. Later the tug towed the Kimberton into Nantasket Roads.

The rescue of the five from the wreck of the Ashland was unusually thrilling, even for the gallant history of New England life-savers.

The Kohinoor had gone down. Her men were lost. The Ashland was caught between wind, surf and rocks on foot off of the North Scituate shore. The life-savers had been unable to get their boat safely into the boiling surf.

Captain Fred C. Franzen of the life-savers was hurled by a broken leg. was driven to the beach in a sleigh. Five hundred spectators were gathered in front of the Cliff House, watching the wreck out in the breakers and the life-crew desperately working on shore.

On the breaking barge were the five men, hidden by a sprinkle of iron falling by the deck house.

Captain Franzen bobbled out of his sleigh. He urged his men to put out the lifeboat, saying:

"My God, I'm going out myself. I won't ask my men to go anywhere that I can't go myself."

BARGE BREAKS IN TWO.

The crew tackled the lifeboat again. Just then it was 9 o'clock—the barge broke in two.

Captain Franzen burst into tears. Other spectators wept. The disheartened captain was persuaded to get back into his sleigh and was driven away.

The deck-house portion of the wreck, with the five men lashed to the iron railing thrashing themselves desperately with their arms to keep up circulation in the freezing cold, began to travel slowly toward shore, caught by one of the twisting currents.

It was 600 feet out. In a half hour it had drifted in to within fifty feet of the shore. It tossed and tossed and spun as it made the fearful trip, but the crew stayed on and the spectators on shore watched with hopes and prayers.

CHANCE FOR LINE.

There was still a chance of getting a line across if the piece of wreckage came near enough. There was no chance to send a boat across the boiling surf.

The wreckage caught within 50 feet of shore. The life-savers took a line, weighted at one end. One of the strongest made a cast. He failed. His mate, another and another. He made ten, then eleven.

On the twelfth cast the weighted end of the light line sped within a foot of one of the men on the deck house. This man reached out with a frantic grab and caught the line.

Cheers went up from shore. The men on the wreck waved their hands.

The end of the light line was made fast to the deck-house. Next the heavier line, one of cable-weight, was sent on to the shore end of the light line. The men on the wreck hauled the cable to them and made that fast to their wheel. The shore end was tied to an iron railing on the breakwater in front of the Cliff House.

A man slid from the wreck into the water, holding on to the cable. Life-savers plunged into the surf to meet him. They met. He was brought ashore. The other four men on the wreck followed, in turn they were all met and brought ashore. All five were saved, snatched from death at the last moment. The last man was ashore and on his way to warm clothing and hot drinks at the lifestation by 9:45.

BODY CAME ASHORE.

Meanwhile a body had come ashore. It was thought to be that of Captain Montgomery of the Kohinoor. That made two bodies, Captain Montgomery's and that of the Kohinoor sailor who had been picked out of the water by life-savers in their first trip out and who had succumbed to exposure.

All night long the life guards patrolled the beach, exhausted from their vain efforts to launch their boat in the teeth of the steadily increasing gale, in an effort to reach the Ashland. Again and again the second barge, in which five other men were in peril. Again and again they fought the boat into the surf, each time to be upset and rolled ashore by the breakers before they had pulled beyond the combers.

When repeated efforts to launch the boat finally had to be abandoned on account of the exhaustion of the men, efforts were made to shoot a line over the barge that hung at the edge of the breakers, every new gust of the gale threatening to increase the pull on her anchors until she dragged into the rocks.

This barge was 600 feet offshore. The guards could see her torches flare, when snowsqualls did not blot her out entirely. At each flare from the barge, answering signals were set off on the beach.

When the gun was dragged into position and the long line coiled for the shot, the gale seemed to increase appreciably. The life savers realized that it was almost impossible to make the shot carry the line to full length in the teeth of the gale, but they tried. It fell short. They kept trying, watching for lulls in the gale to increase the chance of a longer shot. Not once, however, did the shot come near enough to the threatened barge to count.

WIND INCREASES.

Toward daylight the wind had increased to fifty miles and was blowing harder all the time. Although the receding tide gave the lifesavers a better chance, the increasing velocity of the wind negatived the gain of the ebb tide.

It was Coast Guard James Curran who first made out the tug and two empty barges fighting along as if bound back again to Boston, driven in by the gale. From the very start he was afraid that the tug would not be able to win past Smiths and Bar Rocks and Cohasset Ledge.

Captain Tells of Barge Wreck.

After Captain Edstrand and his four men had been saved from the wreck of the barge Ashland, the captain gave his own story of the wreck and the rescue, as follows:

"A light snow was falling when we left Boston about noon yesterday, towed by the tug Swatara. The Ashland was one of three barges in tow, the Kimberton preceding and the Kohinoor following.

"After passing Boston Light about 1:30, the storm increased. As the afternoon wore on I could see that the tug was in for a hard battle in the rough sea. The snow was blinding.

"About 5:30 the tow line between my barge, the Ashland, and the Kimberton parted, leaving the Ashland and the Kohinoor adrift. By this time the wind was blowing furiously. The tug stood by an hour trying to pick us up, but finally left us, heading toward President Roads with the Kimberton.

SAILS IN SHREDS.

"The sails we tried to hoist were blown down to shreds. The two barges wallowed helplessly in the sea for several hours, and there was momentary danger of their coming together. Then I signalled warning that the two barges had better part. But Captain Montgomery of the Kimberton evidently didn't understand. Then I saw the Kimberton's anchor go overboard.

"We were drifting very fast. The flashing of Minot's light was the first intimation I had of our nearness to shore. I ordered my crew to throw out all the chain on one anchor, 165 fathoms. Then came a crash and we were hard and fast on the rocks.

"I blew my whistle and flashed torches all night. After several hours there was an answering signal of two lights on the beach. Thirty minutes later we could see a lifeboat approaching.

"After a terrific battle with the sea the life-savers reached the Ashland. They were just about to take us off when cries of 'Help! Help!' came from the windward, and I realized that the Kohinoor or some other vessel had foundered.

"'Go and save them first,' I told Captain Murphy of the life-savers. 'They are in greater peril.' Reluctantly the life-savers left us. The cries for help continued and about over hand along the hawser toward 200 feet to windward we saw the the shore. As soon as he secured a life-savers lift a man from the water. footing the life-savers ran out and Then the lifeboat, unable to regain pulled him to safety.

"The other members of the crew followed and I was the last to leave the pilot house. Believe me, it felt good to stand on firm ground once again. But I was glad for my men more than for myself, and sorry for the unfortunates who lost their lives."

BIG AUTO SHOW OPENING DRAWS VAST THRONG

Greater Boston answered the call of the automobile today.

Thousands of people flocked toward Mechanics Building for the opening of the fourteenth annual Boston Automobile Show.

The response to the lure of the motor vehicle was from beyond Greater Boston in fact, for auto enthusiasts from all over New England were in the throng that headed for the great exhibition.

Women displayed their ever-increasing interest in the latest wrinkles in the automobile line. The tremendous fascination that the horseless carriage has for the feminine heart was more and more shown, as girls, matrons and grandmothers joined the travel toward Mechanics Building.

The advance Saturday opening of this annual display, preceding the full exhibition week which follows, has become highly popular. Last year the opening attendance of Saturday afternoon and evening ran up to over 40,000 persons.

EXPECT RECORD CROWD.

This year Manager Chester I Campbell of the show and the army of exhibitors, salesmen and others handling the multiple exhibits looked for even more.

The hour set for the opening of the exhibition doors, 2 p. m., was doubly convenient, allowing either afternoon or evening, as one wished, to inspect the dazzling array of exhibits and to view the unusually artistic decorations.

This Boston Automobile Show for 1916 is boasted as in a class by itself. It is the biggest motor vehicle exhibition ever put under one roof in this country.

There are 440 cars on show, either pleasure or commercial vehicles. These comprise 107 makes and form 325 separate exhibits.

In addition there are the exhibits of auto accessories, which include everything in the motor side-line that can be thought of.

SCENE OF SPLENDOR.

There are about 5,000 salesmen at the show, including the agents and sub-agents from various New England districts. These salesmen are prepared to convince anyone that the automobiles—and their particular make of cars—are a little more necessary to human happiness than air, food, heat or light.

They have great arguments in the multiple improvements, increasing beauty and decreasing prices of cars.

Hence an expectation of record business.

The scene in the exhibition halls is dazzling. It appeals particularly to women on account of its varied color. The cars, new and perfect, glitter in rainbow hues.

The town cars are nigh irresistible to the average feminine eye, what with their new tapestry furnishings, their rugs—actually rugs—and other luxurious details.

PREPAREDNESS DISPLAY.

Of course, there is wide interest in the new twelve-cylinder cars, with their tremendous power and ease of motion.

All ranges of purse are considered. One can buy a car for $360. Or one can put $15,000 into a 1916 motor beauty that is the last word in automobile elegance, speed and comfort.

An interesting feature of the 1916 show is a demonstration in preparedness put on by "Uncle Sam." Lieutenant W. Harlow Kays, who enjoys the soubriquet of "Press agent of the U. S. Navy," has charge of the preparedness display, which is in the directors' room.

It includes 21-inch torpedoes, types of projectiles from one-pound and 14-inch shells, model of 5-inch gun, rapid fire guns and service rifles. First-class gunners mates are on deck to show how the guns do their deadly work.

BRANDEIS WAS FEARED BY THE NEW HAVEN

Providence, March 4.—The name of Louis D. Brandeis, whose qualifications for a United States Supreme Court judgeship are being discussed before a sub-committee of the Senate Committee on Judiciary, was brought into the New Haven "divorce" hearing today by William M. Harris, Jr., of this city, a big dealer in lumber and other building materials, who is vigorously against the New Haven's petition to retain its Sound steamboat lines.

Mr. Harris said that a New Haven traffic manager argued against his seeing Mr. Brandeis about alleged New Haven monopoly, saying it would "cost $500 a minute."

Mr. Harris in other testimony charged that the New Haven and certain Chambers of Commerce men were in league to further New Haven plans.

PROTESTED CONDITIONS.

In support of this claim he came to the Brandeis incident, saying:

"I wrote a letter to the Interstate Commerce Commission in February, 1914, about New Haven monopoly conditions. I knew that the New Haven dictates policies of some chambers of commerce for this reason.

"On the day following that letter I met a New Haven traffic man, now holding a responsible position in the Rhode Island State government. I told him I was going to see Louis D. Brandeis. He advised my not seeing Brandeis, as it would cost $500 a minute. I told him the expense was nothing in comparison with the abuse.

"That man notified a Chamber of Commerce, and within one hour they called a special meeting at which officials of the New Haven were present. They made every effort to thwart my plans."

The hearing is before John H. Howell, special examiner for the Interstate Commerce Commission. Mr. Harris was on the stand through the morning. At the close none of the New Haven's representatives asked to cross-examine him.

Mr. Harris came to the hearing representing the Terminal Warehouse. William M. Harris Company, his father's concern, and himself. He said in his early testimony:

"The New Haven road has for some time carried on a propaganda to educate the people to the belief that the automobiles—and their particular make of cars—are a little more necessary to human happiness than air, food, heat or light.

"I know of certain members of Chambers of Commerce who are in league with New Haven officials to further this plan. You will not get many of the members of these Chambers at this hearing, as they dare not come out in the open.

REASON FOR MONOPOLY.

"I know for a fact that many large concerns in New England receive favors regarding transportation which small merchants and manufacturers do not enjoy. That is the reason so many of the New Haven traffic men have appeared at these hearings in favor of their monopolies and why so few members of the Chambers of Commerce have appeared.

"Narragansett Bay is one of the best in the world. It is controlled by the New Haven. The United States and the State of Rhode Island have spent money to dredge the bay and the New Haven gets the benefit.

"If the coastwise boat lines are divorced, independent companies will start, with rates 20 per cent. cheaper.

"I am going to ask the Interstate Commerce Commission, from its experience, understands these matters and knows what the public needs much better than any person in this community, outside of the officials of the New Haven road."

Edward P. Reed of Providence, representing over $4,000,000 worth of electrical and wire corporations, opposed the divorce of the rail and boat lines.

Allan H. Elder, counsel for the Interstate Commerce Commission, quizzed Mr. Reed as to his knowledge of the Colonial line, and many hearings of freight rates through competition.

Benjamin Speck, of counsel for the New Haven, objected to some of the questions, whereupon Frank Swacker, representing the Department of Justice, said to Speck and Examiner Howell:

"Mr. Speck is interpellating speeches and delaying matters."

GIVE RECEPTION TO LONDON ARTIST

Miss Constance H. Cumming, miniature portrait artist of London, England, was the guest of honor at a reception this afternoon by Mr. and Mrs. Albert Thayer at Mr. Thayer's studio in the Farragut building, Massachusetts avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Thayer and Miss Cumming received. The patronesses were: Mrs. John Albert Barbour, Mrs. Jean Dalligan, Mrs. Roy Grover, Mrs. Frank Dupee, Dr. Lucy Appleton and Mrs. Jessie K. Southwick.

FRANCIS NAMED FOR RUSSIAN POST

Washington, March 4.—The White House officially announced this afternoon that the nomination of David R. Francis of St. Louis, to be Ambassador to Russia, to succeed George T. Marye, resigned, will be sent to the Senate. It was stated that word has been received from Petrograd that Francis' appointment would be satisfactory to the Russian government.

MAXIM HOTEL CO. NOW IN BANKRUPTCY

The Maxim Hotel Company, which operates "Maxim's" on Harrison avenue, has been petitioned into involuntary bankruptcy by Augustus T. Berry, attorney, meeting Charges F. & Co., with a claim of $4,163; William Albrecht, Inc., with a claim of $420, and Joseph F. Minan, with a $o claim.

Stole Rivets; Three Months.

Frank Fury was convicted of stealing a case of rivets valued at $100 from the New Haven Railroad and sentenced to three months in the House of Correction. He appealed

Dog Locked Up, Wins Release of Girl Prisoner

A young woman arrested in South Boston while under the influence of liquor and locked up at the D street station owes her release partly to her pet dog.

When the policeman placed her under arrest a black spaniel dog that accompanied the woman started to snap at him. After the patrol auto arrived the faithful little animal jumped into the auto and proceeded to the station with its mistress.

At the station, when the facts were explained to the lieutenant, the dog was locked up with its master and his mistress and remained with her until she was brought into court. In court her only friends were the little black dog, Nemo, and the probation officer, Miss Helen McGuirk, who had her case filed.

As the woman was released from the dock her dog little followed at her heels, wagging his tail and barking with joy.

GIVEN 8 MONTHS FOR NON-SUPPORT

David F. Nawn, twenty-five, of Holden, was sentenced to eight months in the House of Correction by Judge Wentworth in the Somerville District Court on charge of non-support of his wife, Nora L. Nawn, who is living on Leon street, Somerville. Nawn pleaded guilty to the charge but appealed the sentence. He was held in $400.

Mrs. Nawn testified that her husband deserted her two years ago today. She also said he was the father of a baby daughter which he had never seen.

TRACY, MURDER SUSPECT, IN BOSTON

Frank J. Tracy, brought to Boston from Fort Madison, Ia., to answer to a charge of complicity in the murder of Samuel Cohen, a junkman, in a basement on Springfield street last May, arrived at Police Headquarters at noon today in the custody of Inspector Thomas H. Lynch and Sergeant William J. Casey.

Tracy was serving a sentence of from one to ten years at Fort Madison on a charge of breaking and entering and was pardoned by the Governor of Iowa on the request of District Attorney Pelletier, so that he might be brought back here to face trial for murder.

He and Delavan J. Rogers, now in the Charles street jail, are accused of luring Cohen into the Springfield street cellar, robbing and killing him. They will be tried together and at once.

TROLLEYMEN VOTE AGAINST STRIKE

Haverhill, March 4.—Employes of the Massachusetts Northeastern Electric Railway Company voted no on a proposal for a strike to enforce the union's demands for the reinstatement of a motorman discharged last July for alleged insubordination. The ballots showed that the two-thirds vote required for a strike had not been cast.

Pajama Party Interrupted By Artist's Wife

By International News Service.

New York, March 4.—How a pajama party in the studio of Maurice Compris, noted mural painter, was rudely interrupted by the unexpected arrival of the artist's wife was described in Supreme Court Justice Finch, before whom Mrs. Compris has started suit for divorce.

Suspecting that Mr. Compris' nights were being spent in his studio in the pursuit of art that had nothing to do with mural decorations, Mrs. Compris assumed the role of detective and did a little sleuthing. Accompanied by John C. Meldrum and Miss Katherine Haines a friend, Mrs. Compris stole up to the studio.

"I rang the bell," Mr. Meldrum told the court, "and when a voice wanted to know what was the matter I said 'Telegram for Compris.' The door was opened by Mr. Compris and we rushed into the well-lighted room.

"A pretty young woman was lying on the couch attired in her 'undies' and with beautiful braids of luxuriant hair hanging down her back. Mr. Compris stood near in his 'nightie.' Mrs. Compris could not restrain her anger and shook a threatening fist in the young woman's face and shouted, most dramatically:

"'Vladimir Scott, at last I've got you.'

"Miss Scott," the witness continued "was unabashed and, looking Mrs. Compris squarely in the eye, she said 'Well, what did you expect to find?'"

This is Miss Claudia Scott, the Hippodrome dancer. Take a good look at her."

TAKE CENSUS OF MEN READY FOR U. S. SERVICE

By International News Service.

Washington, March 4.—The War Department determined to be prepared for any contingency, has ordered every army officer to ascertain how many men of military experience would be available for commissions in the army should their services be needed.

Questionnaires have been directed first to all commissioned officers who saw service in the Spanish war. Each has been asked whether he can be depended upon to return to the colors should a Southern call him. In addition inquiries have been sent to all of those who informally offered their services to the United States when the Mexican situation was most acute about two years ago.

At that time the War Department looked up and listed a vast number of men with technical or military experts whose services would be invaluable to war. To all of these the inquiries has been repeated and each has been asked to inform the war department whether the tender of services made in the former Mexican crisis holds good at present.

As a result of increasing the commissioned personnel of the army, should need arise, the department is making careful study of the lists of those attending the students' military camps and the boat has seen a military camps, notably that held at Plattsburgh, N. Y., last year.

Deserted Baby Found on Steps as Storm Rages

A two-weeks-old baby boy, left on the doorstep of a Hancock street home in Dorchester during last night's snowstorm, the bodies coming quite happily at the Charles street station.

The baby's eyes attracted the attention of Miss Helen A. Gates of the Hancock street address who went to the door, found the baby and notified the police.

The baby was wrapped in a white blanket, with a flannel blanket outside of that. A bottle of milk and clothing it was so warmly wrapped that it had suffered little from the storm, and not at all materially.

THAW DIVORCE SUIT HEARD IN SECRET

Pittsburgh, March 4.—Daddy Neely Thaw's request not to contest the divorce suit brought by his daughter, Mrs. Edith Thaw, was in the hands of the first hearing on his petition today before Special Master John H. Thomas, Mrs. Thaw did not appear in court, but was represented by counsel. Evidence of the plaintiff was only given out on the absence of assertion from the other side.

Will have an exclusive story on "Blows That Win Fights" in tomorrow's Boston Sunday AMERICAN. The champion is training in New York for his bout with Frank Moran, March 25, and gives some inside facts on the big battle.

BE SURE AND READ THIS STORY IN THE SUNDAY AMERICAN.

OUTPINISHED by "Italian Joe" Gans of Brooklyn, mussed up quite a bit in the tenth and eleventh sessions, and likewise probably losing the twelfth, Joe Eagan, the South Boston welterweight, had run up such a wide early lead on the Al McMurray entrant in their game of fistiuffs at the B. M. A. A., Hibernian Hall, Roxbury, last night, he had every license to the award Referee Larry Conley slipped him.

While some hoots greeted the decision, it was eminently proper. Gans didn't fight a lick for nine rounds; in fact, for three-quarters of the performance he loomed up as one of the saddest ringsters showing in a winding event in a Boston ring in a long, long time.

It developed early; in fact, the talent knew just as soon as the match was made, that Eagan's one chance to lose to the Italian was to get careless and permit himself to be lured flush by one of Gans' wild swings. The Brooklyn boy started many a "Mike Donovan" and kept the rounds his long swipes missed the mark by anywhere from one inch to one yard.

GANS VERY FOOLISH.

In spots Gans was as wild as Southpaw George Tyler of the Braves ever was. Furthermore, he worked very slowly. The odds were 10-6 in Eagan's favor when the curtain went up. At last halfway mark they had lengthened; in fact, it was a case of write your own ticket if you cared to chance a wager on Gans.

Referee Conley was constantly telling the Italian boxer that something, while the fans were reminding him of the fact he missed his calling when he took up boxing as a livelihood.

Starting with the tenth Gans got underway. He won that stanza a mile and also carried off the honors in the eleventh. Gans likewise stepped a wee bit the faster in the twelfth. If he had started as he finished the fans would have seen quite a battle. As it was the set-to was one of the tamest of the season, with Eagan going over in a canter, despite the fact he was clearly outfought in the windup.

The star bout of the evening was the semi-windup number. It brought together Barney Snyder and Sammy Sterns, two of the best Class B bantamweights hereabouts. Every time they come together it's a thrilling Shubert show. While Barney and Sammy had several spectacular battles at the Arena last Summer, the set-to they pulled last night was clearly the best of the bevy.

SEMI-WINDUP HIT OF BILL.

Battling at a particularly rapid gait for seven rounds, with something doing practically every second that Sterns in the lead, then tied, then Snyder in front, then tied again, each showing the way, Snyder, after losing the seventh chapter, came back strong in the eighth and weakening Sterns from a fusillade of stomach blows, dropped his sturdy vis-a-vis cleanly.

Sterns claimed he was touled, but Referee Conley decided otherwise. It looked as if everything Snyder shot in to Sterns' anatomy was 18-karat. They were short, sharp jabs that stabbed and they rained in, all landing in the pit of the stomach. It was a spectacular ending of a spectacular mill, and to Sterns' credit it can be said that sans the kayo he would probably have gained a draw if the bout had lasted its remaining 90 seconds.

Johnny Donovon, the promising South Boston broiler, kept on his winning streak by giving the willing Master "Chick" McDonald a boxing lesson in six rounds. "Chick" is a game one and did his best, but Donovan had too much class for him and won in a romp.

Harvard Track Team Off to Big N. Y. Games

Harvard's competitors in the second indoor intercollegiate track meet in New York tonight left on the morning train. The squad embraced Captain Bingham, Trainer Dempsey, Coach Wilcox, Minot, Biddle, Coggeshall, Coach Donovan and Trainer O'Leary. Manager Chenery is already in New York, where he will attend the meeting of the executive committee of the I. C. A. A. A. this afternoon and put forward Harvard's petition for permission to stage the annual indoor games in the Stadium, May 26-27.

RING REMARKS

AFTER a two-day pow-wow Manager Bennett of the B. M. A. A. has closed the Al Shubert-Eddie Campbell bout and it will be put on next Friday night.

ONE-TWENTY is as light as Campi can come and John Miller, Shubert's manager, has signed for that weight. Shubert crossed the bulk of the critics and experts by making 116 ringside for Johnny Kirle. Furthermore, the New Bedford boy was at his best for the champion.

CAMPI came in at 120 when on with Mickey" Brown, the Malden bantamweight, at the B. M. A. A. a few weeks ago. He proved himself the "classiest" little fellow showing in this vicinity in a long time.

CAMPI had too much speed for Brown and shaded "Mickey" by quite a margin. In Shubert the Californian will meet not only the best bantamweight in New England, but a boy who is every inch a champion; has ripped as good as they come in the 116-pound division for the past two years, but always ouched out of a match for the title.

SHUBERT'S record is really better than Ertle's. Johnny landed in first place by being fouled by "Kid" Williams, the champion, and with Shubert at New Bedford, Washington's Birthday, Johnny didn't show he had over 3 per cent. If anything, on Al.

SHUBERT'S many admirers in this vicinity figure him the positive coming champion. If he polishes up Campi, who is as good as ever this Winter and who twice went the full route with Williams out on the Coast, Miller is going after another match with Ertle and won't stop until he gets it.

FITCHBURG'S new club has signed "Mickey" Brown to show at its premier next Friday night. Exhibit B hasn't been booked yet.

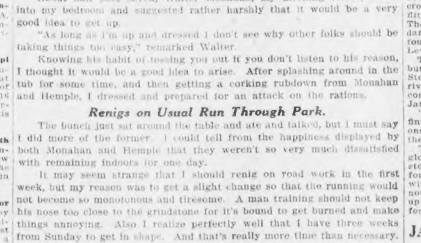
AL LIPPE, the lousy New York manager, has added Bantamweight Frankie Brown to his string and claims the kid is the best fighting machine any Gotham has turned out since the days of Terry McGovern.

BROWN and Jabes White, the Britisher, had a hot skirmish at Atlanta, N. Y., Tuesday night. Their scrap made such a big hit they will go it again next Tuesday night.

LIPPE will leave New York today with Jeff Smith, the Bayonne, N. J., middleweight, who clashes with Mike Gibbons at St. Paul, Minn., March 17. Smith pulled a bad one here in Boston when on with George Chip. Otherwise, he's been stepping swiftly, though truth it is Jeff pulled most of his fancy stuff in Australia, France and England. Lippe claims Jeff is the best middleweight since Tommy Ryan's time, but somehow or other the Jersey boy cannot get going on high in this country.

LET BRADLEY of Cranston, R. I., writes the AMERICAN hurling defies at Terry Brooks, Gilbert Gallant and Freddie Yelle on behalf of Tommy Rowan, the Brooklyn lightweight.

B. W., New Bedford—Johnny Ertle was born in Austria. He will be nineteen March 21.



New York, Saturday, March 4.

WE HAD just the sort of a morning yesterday I have been longing for since I hit the big city. Instead of tossing off the bedclothes when the old alarm rang at 6:30, I just rolled over and took another snooze. The extra few winks come in handy for I was out a little late Thursday night, appearing at a few show houses to help out a very worthy cause.

About half past seven, Walter Monahan, my morning terror, broke into my bedroom and suggested rather harshly that it would be a very good idea to get up.

"All right, I'm up and dressed I don't see why other folks should be taking things too easy," remarked Walter.

Knowing his habit of tossing you out if you don't listen to his reason, I thought it would be a good idea to arise. After splashing around in the tub for some time, and then getting a corking rubdown from Monahan and Hemple, I dressed and prepared for an attack on the rations.

Renigs on Usual Run Through Park.

The bunch just sat around the table and ate and talked, but I must say I did more of the former. I could tell from the happiness displayed by both Monahan and Hemple that they weren't so very much dissatisfied with remaining indoors for one day.

It may seem strange that I should renig on road work in the first week, but my reason was to get a slight change so that the running would not become so monotonous and tiresome. A man training should not keep his nose too close to the grindstone for it's bound to get burned and make things annoying. Also I realize perfectly well that I have three weeks from Sunday to get in shape. And that's really more time than necessary.

What with writing letters and reading my mail and newspapers the entire morning slipped by speedily and pleasantly. Naturally I felt like eating heartily at the noon hour so we just munched on a few tidbits.

After our lunch all hands took a nice stroll and came back about 1:30. Then it was a jump into the machine and a ride down to the club. We reached the club house shortly after 2 o'clock, which gave me time enough to get in my duds and start work promptly at 2:30.

Spends Lively Afternoon in Gymnasium.

I felt as good as I did the day before starting in my work and the boys were just as lively. In working on the pulleys I was just aching to yank them off the wheels. When I finished this exercise my blood was running wild and I was anxious to box.

The trio of partners, Bob Williams, Jack Hemple and Walter Monahan, were infused with plenty of snap and they gave me the best boxing workout I've had since the start. When we finished our round of boxing I was perspiring freely which was just what I wanted.

A good healthy perspiration will carry more ills out of the system than all the medicine manufactured. "Strangler" Lewis helped to start the water rolling out of my pores by giving me a strenuous workout on the mat. I enjoyed the tussle with Lewis so much that I think I will ask the "Strangler" to come around and assist me whenever he has the time. When this was all over I went through the old system of strengthening the body muscles by bending backward and touching the floor with my head while my body was resting on a chair. If you don't think this will harden your stomach muscles just try it a few times.

Will Start Punching the Bag Today.

I intended to do some bag punching and had the apparatus on the stage, but unfortunately the support was not high enough for me to start work. It will be adjusted this morning and I will take a whack at the old bag this afternoon.

When the bag is all set for action it will enable me to let loose a few swift swings, uppercuts and hooks. You see, when boxing with a partner you really don't hit as hard as you would if you were fighting.

There is one thing I wish to say about my bag punching and that is I'm not a fancy puncher. None of the tattoo business in mine. All I ask of a bag is to stay on its pegs so I can get some work out of it.

In addition to the advantage of being able to let your blows have full sway while punching the bag, you also are enabled to get the eye working better, for the old bag has the habit of swinging back with some force and you have to either wallop it or duck.

Getting back to the training stunt, I enjoyed another corking hot bath before Monahan and Hemple started to give me a bear of a massage. They didn't handle me any too gently while kneading and pounding the flesh.

Surplus Flesh is Rapidly Disappearing.

When it was all over, and the day's work was through, I felt like a Hon. The way the flesh has fallen away within the past few days convinced me that I have lost at least three pounds, and when I start real work the early part of next week the old few pounds of surplus flesh will melt away like snow.

It was about 4:30 when the machine dragged us away from the Pioneer Club for the hotel. As we left I couldn't help remarking to the boys that each day finds me feeling a little better. That is as it should be. And when I consider that I have three more weeks to round into perfect condition I can lay back and smile.

After a good dinner we enjoyed a short stroll, and, after sitting around the hotel until 9 o'clock, I turned in.

Three Dates for Ted Lewis at New Orleans

New Orleans, La., March 4.—Ted (Kid) Lewis has been matched to meet Jack Britton of New York here in a 20-round bout for the welterweight title April 17 or 24.

By ED CURLEY.

New York, March 4.—From away down New Orleans we hear the chirp of Jimmie Johnston, whose star battler, Ted (Kid) Lewis, received a referee's decision over Harry Stone after twenty rounds of boxing Wednesday night. Naturally Joimes is proud of Ted's achievement.

"Twas not many years ago that Joimes clapped the welterweight crown on Jack Sheridan's dome, but Harry flittered away and left the bauble. The old headpiece remained in the dark, dismal darkness until Lewis fought Willie Ritchie for the diadem. Lewis won every inch of the way.

That was satisfactory to Johnston, but he wanted to have Lewis whip Britton to wipe away the slightest rival claim to the title. Lewis accomplished the little heart's decree of James and the latter is very happy.

"Stone was practically out at the finish; Lewis gave a wonderful demonstration of boxing; Lewis electrified the packed house."

The above are just a few of the glowing phrases wired by Mr. Johnston. After flitting in the ethereal for a few lines James drops down with a thud to the material and announces that Lewis has been signed up for three more New Orleans bouts, for which he will receive $7,500.

JACK HANLON EASY FOR BAT LEVINSKY

By International News Service.

New York, March 4.—"Battling" Levinsky has developed into a knocker out. He dropped Jack Hanlon for the count in the third round of their battle last night at the East New York A. C. This makes the second victim of the Battler to take the count this week.

WHITE-WELLS BOUT IS NOT FOR BOSTON

Cincinnati beats Boston to the return match between Lightweights Charley White and Matt Wells. It was a set-to local the fans wanted to see, but the Western city evidently made the superior bid, as it has the two contenders carded to clash in a ten-round skirmish March 20.

TWO MATCHES FOR FLYNN

New York, March 3.—All arrangements have been completed for the bout between Jack Dillon and Jim Flynn here March 10. Flynn has gone into training and Dillon will arrive today. Flynn is also matched with "Battling" Levinsky.

FIVES TIE AT HANOVER.

Hanover, N. H., March 4.—Dartmouth and Penn Freshmen fives battled to a 21-21 tie.

RING RESULTS

Northampton, March 4.—Eddie Dorsey of Springfield whipped Young Oliver of Holyoke in a fairly fast twelve-round bout at the Meadow City A. C. "Chick" West of Holyoke outpointed Young Lojole of Northampton in the welterweight semi-final.

Lowell, March 4.—"Dick" Stosh of Chicago failed to show up for his bout with Walter Butler, the Revere boy, who substituted for Eddie Murphy of South Boston, and the battle was postponed until next week. Tommy Boyle of Lowell beated Billy Edwards of Lawrence in seven rounds.

North Attleboro, March 4.—Harry Carlson, of Brockton, outpointed Al Delhomme of Boston, in a ten-round bout at the Dairy Club. A big crowd was in attendance.

COLLEGE MAT MEN FROLIC

Seven Universities, Including Harvard, Have Teams Entered in Tonight's Title Show.

THE largest amateur wrestling meet ever staged in New England will be put on this afternoon and evening in the Hemenway Gym at Harvard, when seven colleges, comprising the New England Intercollegiate Wrestling Leagues, will send their grapplers after the championship honors.

Bouts in seven classes will be decided, ranging from bantamweight to heavyweight. The preliminaries will be settled this afternoon, leaving the semi-final and title bouts for decision tonight.

Harvard, Yale, Brown, Tech and Springfield Y. M. C. A. College have entered full teams—seven men—while Bates has sent on a squad of four.

YALE SHOWS YOUNG HUSKY.

Yale and Harvard are equal favorites to win the championship, but Tech's team is not to be passed by lightly. The Elli's heavyweight, Baldridge, a 200-pounder, is perhaps the best college wrestler in the East and this might have been settled definitely a few days ago if Dorlman, the great Pennsylvania Greek, had not been injured when the Quakers and Elis clashed. Bartlett, Springfield's heavyweight entry, was a former football guard, and Snow of Harvard formerly held the title of Crimson strong man.

Captain Weatherhead of Harvard looms up as the best of the 175-pound boys, although Armstrong of Brown is "some" wrestler, it is reported. Captain Ward of Brown has been consistent form all Winter in the middleweight class, and Potter of Yale is another man who bears watching.

Davidson, Harvard's colored 125-pound boy, lost to Breitschneider of Springfield last week in an over-time bout. This was Davidson's first setback in two years.

LONGSTRETH IS REFEREE.

In the preliminaries a fall or a decision will count one point in the semi-finals a fall will count three and a decision two points; in the finals a fall will count five points and a decision four points. All bouts will be wrestled to a decision, with A. B. Longstreth, captain of the Pri-cetonian 1915 team, acting as referee. Each of the preliminary bouts will last seven minutes, and the final tussles, nine minutes, with extra periods arranged if necessary.

115-pound class—Dewart (H) vs. Hitchcock (S); Fowler (Y) vs. Lee (Tech); Yota (B) vs. Beyer (Y).

125-pound class—Davidson (H) vs. Cappell (H); Wallace (Y) vs. Breitschneider (S); May (T) vs. Rosch (Tech).

135-pound class—Miller (H) vs. Curry (B); Kreiter (Y) vs. Simple (T); Heiard (S) vs. Reed (Bates); bye, Giles (Tech).

158-pound class—Potter (Y) vs. Graham (S); Wood (H) vs. Cady (Bates); Ruffett (Y) vs. Wirt (Tech).

Braves Sail Away For Miami Camp; Everybody Gay

NEW YORK, March 4.—A complement of our haughty Braves, including Sherwood Magee, "Rabbit" Maranville, George Tyler, Joe Connolly, Eddie Pfizpatrick, Edgar Collins, the new outfielder, a Pirate last season; the Shannon twins, and Rookies Bernard Lee and Arthur Ricco, as well as Trainers Neary and Jones and the war correspondents, left shortly after 5 p. m. yesterday for Savannah, Ga.

If the boat stays up all hands will be at Savannah, Ga., at 6 p. m. Monday.

Business Manager Hapgood and Photographer "Bill" Somers went South by rail. Cipher! Dick Randolph also backed out of the boat trip. He stayed over and said he would leave today.

It won't be long now before the squad will be cutting up capers at sunny Miami. Hapgood hears it was 98 there Wednesday—and in the shade.

PEABODY IN GAME, BUT MELROSE WINS

Though Captain Clinton Peabody was in the game for Arlington High, the rollicking Melrose High team won last night's all important game at the Arena and moved into a tie for first place with Newton High for the Interscholastic Hockey League title. Peabody played at point and did not shine to his usual degree.

The game, brilliantly played throughout, ended with Arlington showing the better attack, but it reserved its rally until too late and it failed to accept a 2-1 defeat. Leavitt and Norwell scored for Melrose, while Heycroft shot Arlington's solo counter.

SHORTEN SIGNS '16 RED SOX CONTRACT

Outfielder Shorten of the Red Sox has signed his 1916 contract. He joined the Champions last Fall, after having a big season with Providence. Shorten writes President Lannin from his home at Scranton, Pa., he is ready for the trip to Hot Springs.

ST. NICKS IN FINAL GAME

Baker, Ellis & Co. Clash with Harvard Club Tonight—Winsor Has Charges on Edge.

HARVARD CLUB.	ST. NICHOLAS.
Hicks, Lw.	r.w., Turrell, Fox
Sortwell, c.	c., Ellis
Phillips, r.	l., Baker
Wanamaker, r.w.	l.w., Kahn, Cox
Clifford, c.p.	c.p., Willetts
Claflin, p.	p., Trinkle
Chadwick, Sagar, s	s., Carnochan

Referees—H. W. Foster and W. H. Russell. Time—20-minute halves.

A COMBINATION of Bub Phillips, Trat Hicks and Pete Sortwell against Hobey Baker and Ray Ellis ought to furnish some exciting hockey when the Harvard Club plays the St. Nicholas team of New York at the Arena tonight.

With Sortwell to offer his help it looks like a mighty busy session when this trio goes after the New York lash. Ellis is the man who beat the Harvard Club in an overtime period and the local players intend keeping a close watch on this elusive little player.

Baker is so great a star that few appreciate the ability of Ellis. This center man does more real all-round effective work than Hobey. Ellis has not the speed nor the stick handling ability of Baker, but as a defensive forward he has few peers playing in this country. Ellis fits in well with Baker in middle ice.

While opposing teams are busy guessing Hobey, Ellis is working into a scoring position. This accounts for the big number of goals Ellis has registered in Eastern Amateur League games this season.

This is the last appearance of Baker here this season and the Harvard Club players promise to make it a farewell long to be remembered.

That the New Yorkers view the contest with no little alarm is evident from the fact that Baker and Ellis arrived yesterday to rest up for the game. They are guests at the home of Roger Cutler, a member of the Harvard Club squad.

Junia Foster, who ran the Harvard-Arena battle so cleverly, will handle the game, which should put a check on rough playing. "Billy" Russell, former president of the Amateur League, will be the other official. The game will start promptly at 8:15.

Cheaper Gasoline

A Government Chemist Perfects a Process to Double the Yield of Gasoline from Crude Oil.

There is a government chemist in Washington — Dr. Rittman—who has made one of the most important discoveries of recent years.

He has invented a process which will cut the price of gasoline twenty-five to fifty per cent by producing double the quantity of that volatile fluid from crude oil.

It is a real business proposition. Six plants are now at work, and others are being erected.

And—

To crown this story of scientific achievement, Dr. Rittman has given this process, which would yield him millions in royalties, free to the American public.

Athletic Cracks Clash at N. E. Titles at Stake

THE Ninth Regiment Armory will be the scene of the annual indoor championships of the N. E. A. A. A. U. tonight, and the games bid fair, being equally as attractive as ever, though Harvard and Tech won't compete, having sent their stars to New York for the big intercollegiate meet.

Otherwise, the entry list could scarcely be improved upon.

B. A. A., Holy Cross, Brown, Boston Y. M. C. A., Dorchester C. C. and Irish-American A. A. are prominently included among the institutions entering their stars.

The program includes sixty-yard dash, sixty-five yard hurdle, 300, 600 and 1000-yard runs, two-mile run, running high jump and shotput.

Among the crack sprinters entered are Howe, O'Hara, Kelley and Pollard. Meanix and High appear as the two top liners in the hurdle event. The best men in the field in the 300-yard run are Halpin, Meanix, Rose, High, Guething and Kelley. Dave Caldwell is down to start in both the 600 and 1000-yard runs.

The two-mile runs bids fair proving one of the big bits of the night. Colby, Henigan, Goo.win, Losero, Mahoney, Power and Coop are among the great "plungers" entered and their race should be productive of a lot of exhilarating sport.

Entries for New England championships:

60-YARD DASH—J. J. Golden, B. A. A.; L. T. Howe, Boston Y. M. C. A.; A. F. Devine, unattached; John Buckley, unattached; Andrew Kelly, Holy Cross; M. P. White, Brown University; C. J. Masterson, M. Basket Ball

JOSEPH GILMORE, the Roxbury boy who leaves next Friday to join Connie Mack's Athletics at Jacksonville, Fla., wound up his season as a forward for the Ideals, a basketball team with a grand record of seven baskets a game.

* * *

THE Fennos have only a few more games to play, but will feel the loss of Gilmore, praised by his opponents as one of the cleanest in the game.

* * *

THE Federal Five would like to arrange games with any 90-lb. pound teams in or about Boston. Write Phil Monroe, No. 46 Vale street, Roxbury.

* * *

THE Roxbury Neighborhood House will meet the fast Wakefield Y. M. C. A. team Friday night in the Neighborhood House gymnasium.

* * *

THE West End A. A., formerly the West End House, would like to arrange games with the fastest teams in the State. Address Robert Fisk, No. 45 Chambers street, Boston, or telephone Haymarket 2259-M after 7 p. m.

* * *

THE undefeated Malden Boys' Club would like to book games with any 95 or 100-pound teams in the State to be played away from home. The C. B. Rollins team of the West End House, preferred. John Leary, No. 140 Commercial street, Malden.

* * *

ST. ALPHONSUS A. A. stacks up against the Roslindale Independent team Saturday night at St. Alphonsus court on Smith street, Roxbury.

* * *

THE regular St. Alphonsus team will appear, while the Roslindale team will probably line up as follows: Morrison, Glynn, Gorman and Cavanagh. This independent team is the pick of three strong quintets.

* * *

COTTER, the husky centre of the Roslindale Independent team, has made many friends by his aggressive, but clean playing. When he faces Cotter tonight it will be their third meeting this year.

* * *

"HAP" MORRISON, who plays a forward position, is one of the youngsters whom Connie Mack has an eye on. His speed in either basketball or baseball is bound to attract attention.

EASTERN COLLEGES TO ADMIT LELAND

New York, March 4—Preparatory to the annual meeting today of the Intercollegiate Association of Amateur Athletes of America, the executive committee last night held its regular preparatory session in the Waldorf-Astoria.

The following institutions had filed applications with the committee for membership in the I. C. A. A. A.: University of Pittsburg, Leland Stanford University and Holy Cross College. The committee recommended that Leland Stanford University be admitted. Holy Cross filed its application too late to comply with the sixty-day provision. Penn and Harvard applied for the outdoor intercollegiate championship this Summer, but no action was taken by the committee.

HEALTH HINTS
Fighting Colds.

Minard's liniment is a creamy, pure, safe remedy for colds which cause so many grip pains this winter. Pains in the head and chest, lumbago and rheumatism all mean that colds must be driven out of the human body. Don't suffer another minute, get down your bottle of Minard's liniment, now is the time to use it, and avoid what might be a more serious illness. If bottle is empty, get another from your nearest druggist, for there is nothing more effective than this old, reliable liniment. Almost every home in New England has used Minard's for years.—Advertisement.

Over 400 Start in High School Meet Today

The third annual Boston District High School athletic meet is on for decision this afternoon at the Ninth Regiment Armory. A record-breaking number of over 400 boys have entered the different events, and the competition bids fair to be unusually keen.

There will be events for the seniors, intermediates and juniors. While East Boston High is in high hopes of repeating its conquest of a year ago, it is bound to have its hands full winning. In fact the odds are against its success.

The stars of the different teams are: Scot Fuller, Finnegan and Stevens, Brighton; Powers, Reardon, Magaldi, Hicks, Wheelock, Nolan, Thornton, Ilaves and Kelliher, South Boston; the Cadelson brothers, McKie and Smith, East Boston; Oliver, Lyons, O'Connell, Smith, Farnham, Hawkins and Brigham, West Roxbury, and Grant and Winchenbaugh, Hyde Park.

Harry Stevens, a former Tufts football star, is coaching Hyde Park, and most experts figure this is the squad the other schools must beat in the games.

The standing broad jump and shotput were contested at the South Boston High gym yesterday, Hyde Park and Brighton each for the seniors in the jump when he broke his own record of 8 ft. 10 in. by three inches.

J. Sullivan, East Boston, heaved the shot 40 ft. It's another record. W. Nolan, also East Boston, cleared 8 ft. 6 in. in the intermediate standing broad jump to a new record over the old mark of 8 ft. 2¼ in. S. Cahey, East Boston, tied up a new mark of 7 ft. 5 in. in the junior standing broad jump, the former mark being 7 ft. 4¾ in.

East Boston led with a total of 25 points, South Boston 21½, Hyde Park 11, Charlestown 6, West Roxbury 2½, Brighton failing to score.

YOUNG HERRICK IN FORM FOR HARVARD

Coach Haines made two shifts in the Harvard freshman eight yesterday. Hill took Nichols' place at No. 2, while the latter was switched to No. 4. Haines gave the four eights a long drill, each in the tanks set with tide machines. Robert F. Herrick, '16, son of the graduate crew coach, is showing good form in the bow seat in the second varsity shell. He is much heavier than a year ago and bids fair proving one of the Crimson's best men.

BASEBALL BY WIRE

Chicago, March 4.—Though Pitcher Tom Seaton has not signed his Club contract he will report President Weghorst he would be on hand for the stir to Canada.

Worcester, March 4.—Denny Murphy, the Athletics' former captain and outfielder, is slated to become manager of the Worcester Eastern League club.

New York, March 4.—The second squad of Giants have left for Marlin without Benny Kauff. The Federal League slugger refused to go, saying he won't report until Harry Sinclair gave him $5,000 of the purchase price and the Giants award him an additional $1,000.

New Orleans, March 4.—Lee Fohl's "Pelicans" threaten to even up matters tomorrow for the 17 to 4 defeat they suffered at the hands of the Indian regulars yesterday. Mayor Davis of Cleveland has accepted Manager Fohl's invitation to pitch the first ball on the Sunday outfield.

Charlottesville, Va., March 4.—A. B. Eberman, catcher of the University of Virginia team for two years, wants a trial with Clark Griffith's Nationals. He has been declared ineligible by the university authorities, who hold that he played professional ball under the name of Robinson.

Daytona, Fla., March 4.—The Dodgers are displaying more ginger than usual in training. Manager Robinson having a hard time finding his men in camp. Today a practice game was staged. Hone and Smith will not get full any vacancies in the batting order.

Hardy Tee, March 4, former star in the giants' camp entered today in the game to be played with Dallas in the first city. Manager Mercer, with a mixed bunch of "regulars" and "rookies," left for Dallas at midnight.

Macon, Ga., March 4.—Manager Bernard to add field for infielders. He has both Magee and Magee in the infield yesterday, and both look good rate of first and second base. The warm weather is aiding materially in whipping the players into shape.

Waxahachie, Tex., March 4.—Coach Billy McKechnie put his ten fastest pitchers against his four catchers through an hour and a half batting practice today.

Palestine, Tex., March 4.—Bill McKechnie, formerly manager of the Newark Federals, has reported to Manager Hugh Jennings, and the fight between Charlie Deal, Jimmy Austin and McKechnie for third base is on.

San Antonio, Tex., March 4.—The first game of the season will be played today between the Cardinals and the local Bronchos.

Johnston Case Is Likely to Lead to Baseball Suit

New York, March 4.—According to members of the Baseball Players' Fraternity the attention of the National Commission will shortly be called to the case of outfielder James H. Johnston, formerly of the Oakland club, who jumped to the Federal League club of Newark last Fall. Later in the season Charles H. Ebbets of the Brooklyn Nationals, claimed he has a verbal contract with the player.

Johnston was signed by the Newark Federals at a salary of $4,000 a year for two years, with the ten-day release clause eliminated. He accepted $1,000 advance money. Later Ebbets offered him a contract with the Brooklyn club, calling for $3,000 a year. Johnston claims that he did not agree to these terms and refused to sign when the Brooklyn club mailed contracts to his home.

Johnston contends that Ebbets must assume his Federal league contract. The Brooklyn club holds that the alleged verbal agreement made with Johnston warrants it in insisting that the player sign a contract calling for a salary of $3,000 a year with the ten-day release clause in force.

There will be no strike over the matter, but it is likely to be carried to the courts.

STECHER HAS SOFT TIME.

Hutte, Mont., March 4.—Joe Stecher, the Nebraska heavyweight wrestler, defeated Pat Connelly, the Irish champion, in straight falls.

NEW YORK RING TALK

NEW YORK, March 4—Jack Toland and Terry Mitchell will meet at the Broadway Sporting Club tonight. In the other ten-rounders Jean Constant, the French and Belgian lightweight champion, meets Frankie Dimmeyer of Brooklyn, while Nate Jackson of Oklahoma City, Ok., tackles Benny McCoy of Baltimore.

TEX KELLY hooks up with Rommy Robson at the Fairmont A. C. this evening. In another one of the bouts Cadie Campi of California meets K. O. Eggers of this city.

ANDRE ANDERSON will met Jack Keeling at the Clermont Avenue rink.

IF looks as if Johnny Kilbane and Harry Ertaudine may come together at the Harlem Sporting Club March 14. Only the question of weight has to be settled. Jimmy Dunn, Kilbane's manager, is holding out for 130 ringside, while the Ertaudine outfit would like to have the match lifted to 133 pounds.

BENNY LEONARD is training so groupe gymnasium for his tenround tilt with Johnny Dundee at Madison Square Garden next Wednesday night.

THERE is quite an argument going on out West about the man who shall go up against Willie Ritchie for Middle Ad Wolgast contest at Milwaukee Monday night. Freddie is holding out for a $10,000 guarantee, but Wolgast refuses to agree to this choice, claiming Houlihan and Freddie are too warm friends.

BATTLING LEVINSKY has been signed for a ten-round bout with Jeddo Carroll at New London, Ct., next Thursday night.

Portland Team First to Enter Pin Tourney

Washington, D. C., March 4.—The first New England entry in the Atlantic Coast bowling tournament at Washington, which starts April 3, was received from the Portland Athletic Club of Portland, Me., which sent in a check to cover a five-man team shooting in the candle pin event.

The locals comprising this team are also to shoot in the doubles and singles, and will go to Washington at the same time that the Boston and other New England bowlers take the trip.

Their Married Life

Helen and Warren Spend a Somewhat Eventful Afternoon Skating

Copyright, 1916, International News Service.

"AREN'T the things happening in the papers these days awful!" said Helen, whirling the sheet that she had taken from Warren when he came in and glancing hurriedly down its columns.

"Oh!" jeered Warren, "the way you women read a paper is certainly a caution. Why, you don't read anything but the headlines."

"Well, that's all that's fit to read. I never in my life heard of such horrible things happening."

"Don't read anything, then."

"That's no argument, dear. I want to know what's going on in the world."

"Well, are you game to go skating?" said Warren, changing the subject.

"Why, yes—you did say something about going skating, didn't you? Surely I can go. Let's call up Bob and Louise and see if they can't meet us there, then we can all go somewhere for dinner."

For once Warren approved of the plans and even offered to call up Bob and Louise while Helen went to dress.

"It's all right," he said a little later, coming into the room where Helen was getting into appropriate clothes. "They'll meet us in half an hour. Are you nearly ready?"

UNEXPECTEDLY READY

"All ready," Helen announced unexpectedly. "Do you know I wish I had some really stunning clothes to skate in."

"That's an idea for you," scoffed Warren. "I suppose you'd like to wear some of those white fluffy-ruffy that some of the feature skaters affect. You'd be a fine-looking object in a public place."

"There are plenty of other kinds of clothes," said Helen in her most dignified manner. "I had no idea of purchasing any of the kind you mentioned."

"Well, don't get cross and spoil the fun. Where are the skates?"

Helen fastened on the plainest hat she possessed, and wished again for a sport costume. She could hear Warren rummaging around in the box where they kept the rubbers and such things.

"Not there, dear," she called out; "on the shelf overhead."

Warren evidently found the place, for he emerged a few minutes later and stood in the doorway somewhat the worse for the accumulation of dust, but still in a good humor.

ON THE ICE

They met Bob and Louise on the ice.

"Why, Louise," said Helen, in surprise, "what a stunning costume. When did you get it?"

"Why, about a month ago," announced Louise; "since we learned to skate, and the craze has kept us busy. Bob thought I might as well look decent when I skated, and I had nothing else to wear but my good street suit."

Helen stole a look at Warren, who was sublimely unconscious. Louise had a leather sport costume beautifully made and of a purplish blue color, a Norfolk jacket and a little leather hat. She wore a soft white muffler thrown around her neck and looked the very essence of what any woman would have pronounced smart.

"It really wasn't so very extravagant," confided Louise to Helen, as they were having their skates strapped on. "You see, I shall use it for tramping this Summer, and Bob and I have decided to spend a month, anyway, in the mountains."

"Well," said Helen, stifling a little sigh, "I suppose if I ever mentioned such a thing Warren would think me hopelessly extravagant."

"Yes, I suppose he would," said Louise. "Well, at least Bob didn't present me with a motley outfit."

Helen smiled faintly. And at that moment Warren and Bob came over to them.

"Did you have my skates sharpened?" queried Warren.

"No, dear, I forgot all about it," said Helen, flushing a little.

WARREN'S RETORT

"It might do that hall closet a lot of good if you cleaned it out some day," said Warren, in his superior manner.

"I know it needs it," said Helen, laughing in spite of herself. "I always intend to clean it out and then something is sure to happen to prevent it."

Warren said nothing more, and they were soon skating leisurely over the ice. Helen could not help thinking of last year when she had first tried to skate. Of course, she had fallen around and had made a perfect idiot of herself, and every one had laughed. It had not been a pleasant experience for one so sensitive as Helen and she had not forgotten it for a long time afterward. She had kept right at it, however, and had learned to skate rather well—that is, she did good, solid skating without any flourishes—and she was glad now that skating had become so popular.

"This place is really no good any more," said Warren disgustedly. "There are too many amateurs always ready to trip you up. There goes one now," he said, as a couple ahead of them fell heavily. "They ought to learn out in the open country somewhere. It would be better for all hands around."

"Suppose they can't find another place," said the more lenient Helen. "Remember, we learned in this very place."

WARREN APPROVES

"You did," said Warren. "I have skated ever since I was a kid. It's fine exercise for anyone. Most sensible fad that has been introduced in some time."

"Oh, look!" said Helen eagerly, turning half around. "Aren't those people professional skaters? Everybody's watching them. I'm sure they are!"

Warren turned to see better, and as he did a girl who was learning to skate came too near him and fell in a little heap right in Warren's way. He tried to save himself, but he was too late. And, tripping over the girl, he fell headlong. Not a great many people saw the fall, but Warren was furious. He picked himself up slowly and skated over to the edge of the rink, followed by Helen. Bob and Louise were on the other side and had not noticed.

"That was a shame, dear," said Helen, coming up to him.

"It was all your fault," said Warren, turning to her suddenly. "Put one thing, the skates are too small for any decent curves. I told you to have them sharpened. And then your exhibiting that scene a couple of professionals was enough to make any one fall."

Helen knew that Warren had stumbled through his own carelessness, but she said nothing. Silence was better than an argument of any kind, particularly in a public place.

To Be Continued.

Civilization in Miniature

ANTS apparently have a most elaborate group system. The dividing line between the "workers" and the "shirkers" is a very sharp one indeed.

In military matters they are quite up to date. "Sapa" and communication trench are not unknown to them, and they have a passion for raiding weaker communities and capturing their spoils.

According to an eminent naturalist, they live and work in a collective rather than an individual sense, and their habits and pursuits are so remarkably human that they form most interesting parallels to our own modes of living.

The main work is done by the smaller ants, the large ones acting as overseers, and a species called harvesting ants are mainly employed in bringing home foodstuffs—wheat, maize, grain, etc.—while another section acts as hunters.

The young ants, whose skins are too tender for rough work, nurse the babies! They protect, feed and even teach them—for the ant kingdom can boast of schools that vie with the human sort.

The babies are also taught to value fresh air and sunshine, and are grouped together at school according to age.

On the same system of unity the ants' dwellings are connected with a large central hall by a labyrinth of passages, tunnels and corridors. The central chamber is used as a kind of assembly hall, while the cities themselves are linked one with the other by carefully prepared roads.

Rather Baffled Him

Tommy had just completed his first term at a boarding school. On the evening of his return home, wishing to impress his little sister with the vastness of his knowledge, he led her to her nursery window, pointed to a star, and said:

"You see that right up there? Well, it's bigger than all this world."

"No, 'tain't" replied his sister.

"But I tell you it is," returned the youthful scholar.

"Then why is it that it can't keep off the rain?" came the baffling retort.

"Awfully Busy!"

By NELL BRINKLEY

Copyright, 1916, by International News Service

"THAT'S as how" you look at it. People say it to one another so many times a day! Over the telephone, in a buzzing bass, the man offers it as a reason why he hasn't "dropped 'round" in so long a while—"I've been mighty busy!"

The girl deep in exams scrawls on monogrammed paper to the girl across the continent, "I haven't written in so long, Janey—but I've been so BUSY!"

Two slim creatures who have little else to do save talk psychology and charity bazars, and fly from a dinner to a theatre and on to a dance, kiss each other fondly while the traffic snarls and moan, "My DEAR—I'm frightfully busy!"

The little person who beats a typewriter all day long, or the pleasant, so-many-times-pretty girl who spreads everything she has from behind the counter for your pleasure, looks sadly at the unmended blouses, and stockings with little ladders of dropped stitches going down them, and says, "If I wasn't so busy!"

The artist who scratches away in black and white, and is looked upon enviously by the ash can man, groans while he ("I she") "gets out" a drawing while all the rest of the world is asleep, "I can't get time to write to my own father—I'm so busy!"

The man who labors at night seems never to come out even, and is "so busy." The lawyer who can yet get away for a tiny game of golf when he feels as dry as dust with the weightiness of his calling is for all that "too busy" to do thus and so!"

The big man with five telephones circling him 'round, who dabbles in this and that, lectures, fills a good big niche of his own in the world and shows a great army under him how to fill theirs—is "too busy" to remember not to go on to a dinner in his "duster"! And the little man under him, who has but one thing to do, and is told when and how to do that, is yet "too busy to eat!"

Aren't we funny? I reckon you think that no one is just quite so busy as you! It's a notion we have.

The lovely person without ever a weight on her heart or mind, with Plenty opening wide its hand to her at a whisper, singing "tra-la-la," who can have a whole afternoon to "dress" for a party if she chooses, and idle moments like merry people ringing her 'round, each with a little joy to offer—will tell you, while she pats her last curl in place and dashes for her cloak, that she's "awfully busy!"

The little mother with a heart as big as a Benefit auditorium—It has to be—stops brushing the last of her baby's feathery hair into imaginary place, and while he rolls in her lap and chuckles and pulls and makes bubbles and kicks her elbows, she ties the bonnet on one little person, tucks in the hair of another, sees that they all have a handkerchief, wipes the last breakfast crumbs off Billy and wraps up his ears, bears the tall one spell her lesson, and promising to finish a new frock "for in the morning," sends one brigade to school. First lap—phisyx seconds! And that night the little mother apologizes, "I would have done thus and so—but I've been awfully busy!"

There is truth!

Are you awfully busy—or do you just think you are?

—NELL BRINKLEY.

What the World Owes to Women's Inventive Genius

WOMEN are generally considered lacking in inventive genius. The truth is that ladies have been taking out patents steadily since 1790.

It must be confessed that these ideas have not always turned out a complete success, but, then, the world has progressed as a result of many mistakes other than those of inventors.

How few women ever realize as they ply their crochet-hook that it was a Scotswoman, Christian Shaw, the daughter of the laird of Balgarran, in Renfrewshire, who was the first to produce thin thread, as far back as 1720; her idea was developed later by the big Paisley firms of Clark and Coats.

Silk weaving was invented by the wife of the fourth emperor of China, in the dim ages of antiquity; a woman in the harem of an Indian prince invented the weaving of cashmere shawls; the same clever woman or her mother (authorities differ on this point) discovered attar of roses; while a poor Italian woman rediscovered the secret of Venetian point lace, which had been lost for nearly 600 years.

As a rule, the women of the Anglo-Saxon race have confined their attentions to the improvements of articles of personal or household use. But there have been notable exceptions, as in the case of a Bristol, England, shipbuilder who amassed a fortune by adopting his wife's suggestion to use copper instead of iron nails in the bulls of the vessels.

It was a little girl who hit upon an invention which revolutionized the making of screws, and the American woman who patented a process for turning out horseshoes on a big scale saved her country the sum of $240,000 in a dozen years.

The most amusing application ever received at a patent office was from a woman who desired to patent a mustache protector, but the authorities are still undecided as to whether it was for her own use or that of a man.

One ingenious woman in London some little time ago topped the record by owning no fewer than ten patents, which ranged from combination toothbrush racks to methods of disinfecting money in tills and microbes on doormats.

Mary Kees was the first American woman to take out a patent, in 1798, for weaving straw with silk or thread; but with the spread of education the number of feminine inventions have increased, until between 1884 and 1910 the sum total of 7,942 patents was granted them. These varied from a baby jumper to a deep-sea telescope, and from a fountain pen to the first cooking stove.

A woman who used her wits was determined, if possible, to save the time and labor of her husband, who was a postmaster in California, and she brought out a permutation lock with 3,000 combinations, as well as a letter box for the outside of houses which displays a sign to the postman when there are any letters to collect inside.

A woman shop-assistant patented a satchel bottom paper bag, and pocketed £24,000 for her brainy idea. Several wives who assist their husbands in farm management have patented improvements on agricultural implements. Others have reduced labor in factories and shops by their practical solutions, and not a few nurses have been responsible for improved hospital appliances.

Madame Curie's triumph as the discoverer of radium is still fresh in the public mind, as is that of Dr. Maria Montessori, whose novel methods are likely to revolutionize the art of teaching in the near future.

Last year 350 patents were applied for by women, and the following analysis demonstrates the scope and variety of their interests:

Dress 54, nursing and medical 34, household requisites 20, cooking 9, mechanical 24, mortar cars and cycling 7, gardening and needlework 6, babies' requisites 6, and aeroplane 1.

Others less practical concerned inventions for preserving the contour of face and chin, flesh reducing garments pneumatic boot-lasts, means for keeping the seats of 'buses dry, and an apparatus for preventing chills after a hot bath. The warlike spirit of the times was reflected in such patents as nets and armorings for defensive purposes, and an inflated lifebelt.

In Our Wonderful World

A flowering plant, according to scientists, abstracts from the soil two hundred times its own weight in water during its life.

• • •

It has been frequently noticed that no wild bird can understand the properties of glass, and great numbers, ranging in size from a pheasant to a titmouse, are killed by flying against the windows of country houses.

If a room possesses a large mirror reflecting the view seen through an open window, birds are particularly liable to be deceived, and especially if frightened, into thinking that they can fly through it.

Sparrowhawks will sometimes chase their intended victims into strange places. Some years ago a member of this species pursued a small bird through the open window of a railway carriage in motion. In its blind determination to secure the panting fugitive it entangled its claws in the meshes of the hat-rack, and was ignominiously slain by an astonished passenger with an umbrella.

An icon is a holy picture or mosaic, blessed by a priest of the Greek church and carried by the devout as a talisman to ward off evil. The subject usually represented is either a Russian saint or some event in the life of the Saviour or of the Virgin Mary. In the Greek church, as in other Christian churches, the worship of graven images is forbidden, but no objection is made to anything reproduced on a flat surface. Therefore, icons are permitted in the form of mosaics, paintings, enamels or prints.

They play an important part in the religious life of the Russians, and are to be met with everywhere—in churches, public offices, private houses and workshops. After the icon has been blessed by a priest it is then regarded not only as an ornament, but as an accessory in the worship of the Greek church. Almost every soldier wears an icon on his bosom, and when he prays he takes out his icon and, opening it, kneels down before it as if it were a portable altar. Every Russian regiment has its special icon, which it carries when the regiment goes into battle.

The Tenesei varies in width from ten to thirty miles for three hundred miles from its mouth, and from the upper parts rafts made of timber are sent down, simply drifting with the current. A kind of rough barge is also used, purely for driving purposes, which is usually sent from the more cultivated districts on the upper part of the river loaded with various necessaries of life and broken up for building purposes at its destination.

CHURCH NEWS of GREATER BOSTON

Boston churches are preparing for additional services and meetings in Lent, which will begin Wednesday. Easter Day is April 23.

* * *

On Ash Wednesday a special service will be held in King's Chapel at 11:30, when anthems will be sung by the Harvard College choir. The Rev. James De Normandie, D. D., of Roxbury will preach.

* * *

Daily services will take place in every Unitarian church next week, to be followed by evening services daily in King's Chapel from March 12 to March 19. The preachers at these services are the Rev. U. G. B. Pierce of Washington, the Rev. Paul Revere Frothingham of the Arlington Street Church, the Rev. Julian C. Jaynes of West Newton and Professor Francis G. Peabody of Harvard.

* * *

Five services will be held on Ash Wednesday in St. Paul's Cathedral. Bishop Lawrence has appointed April 9-15 as a week of prayer and preaching in all the Episcopal churches of the diocese of Massachusetts.

* * *

"Prepare Ye the Way of the Lord" will be the general topic for a series of addresses to be given every Tuesday in Lent, beginning March 7, in the Greenwood Memorial M. E. Church, Dorchester.

* * *

Evangelist William H. MacLaughlin of Ohio is conducting religious meetings in the First Evangelical Church, Temple street, Somerville. These meetings have been crowded night after night. Thomas Armstrong of Scotland sings.

* * *

At the First Baptist Church, Jamaica Plain, the Rev. Dr. Walter Calley will begin a series of sermons on these topics: "After Death, What?" "Is There Life Beyond?" "Shall We Know Each Other After Death?" "What and Where Is Hell?" "What and Where Is Heaven?" on Sunday evenings in March.

* * *

Dr. Charles Fleischer will speak on "An American Calendar of Holidays" at the Sunday Commons in Huntington Chambers Hall at 3:30 p. m.

* * *

The total amount for the Star Island campaign fund of the American Unitarian Association is $25,896.96.

* * *

A big revival has been conducted in the Topsfield Methodist Church by the Rev. Edwin A. Brown of the Boston University School of Theology.

* * *

The Rev. J. W. Welsh, advance agent for the Boston Billy Sunday campaign, will be in this city May 10 to make the concluding arrangements for the building of the tabernacle. He will then remain in Boston until the opening of the meetings.

* * *

A new Methodist church will be built in Winthrop at a cost of $20,000.

* * *

Former Representative Edmund Weber of Roxbury was tendered a reception last evening in the First Free Baptist Church by the Hayes Bible Class of that church, of which Mr. Webber has been president for five years. He was presented with a gold watch chain and a sum of money.

* * *

The largest Italian Sunday school in this country meets every Sunday in the Howdoin Square Baptist Church. It numbers 300, and has twenty workers from seven Boston churches.

* * *

The architect for the "Billy" Sunday tabernacle to be built on Huntington avenue is Deacon Henry H. Kendall of the Newton Centre Baptist Church. The work will be begun in August, and will be completed by October 1.

* * *

The Rev. Smith Baker, pastor emeritus of the First Congregational Church, Lowell, was given a purse of gold upon the eightieth anniversary of his birth.

* * *

The monthly meeting of the Woman's Board of Missions will be addressed by Mrs. Harry W. Hicks of Glen Ridge, N. J., Mrs. Agnes D. Gordon of Kyoto and Miss Fannie E. Griswold of Japan.

* * *

"A Lesson From Emerson—Spiritual Laws," to be opened by W. J. Colville, will be one of the features at the New Thought Forum Association Sunday at 4:30 p. m., in the South Congregational Church, Exeter street.

* * *

An Immigrant Girls' Home, in East Boston, is maintained by the Methodist Episcopal church. The home is located near the wharf of the Cunard line. Mrs. A. C. Clark is in charge.

* * *

Episcopal—City Club, 1 p. m., address on the "Future of Christianity," by Bishop John W. Hamilton of the M. E. church.

Congregational—Pilgrim Hall, 10:30 a. m., Captain Edwards of Vineyard Haven is the speaker.

VOTE IN SENATE AIDED STOCK MARKET

By BOERSIANER.

With total transactions a little less than on Thursday, the market was widely different in other respects. Its tone was defined, its trend more decided. Stocks were decidedly strong. Net advances in the directive issues ranged from 1 to 3½ points higher.

Practically all of the gain was made after the Senate had voted on the Gore resolution. From then on to the close amends (in activity and strength) were made for the previous nondescript hours.

• • •

Where the bear commitments were the largest there the rises were the most pronounced, which is another way of saying that in the industrials, and more especially in the specialties, the advances were abrupt, and in several instances violent. What may be called natural appreciations—due to other than purely speculative vagaries—included Corn Products.

A mind that cannot disassociate any American industrial from war munitions must have been responsible for the generally-discussed report that some of the company's products are a valuable ingredient in the manufacture of powder, hence "the company will benefit largely as a result of orders that will be placed soon for the output."

• • •

Whiskey can be made from corn, and whiskey may form a component of powder, but this interesting transmutation will not be performed by the Corn Products Company so long as the Rockefellers are in control. The Rockefellers have conscientious scruples against putting money into companies that make alcohol, tobacco or powder.

Not a bond or a share of such companies are or ever have been held by the Rockefellers, who otherwise are latitudinarians in their investments. The yearly statement of the Corn Products Company will be issued next week. The chances are many that today's advance was in anticipation of any unusually favorable report.

• • •

A report unusually favorable was that of the Lackawanna Steel Company for the calendar year ended December 31, showing net earnings of $5,977,470, compared with $1,581,378 in 1914, or seven per cent. on the stock. The surplus was $2,408,020 against a deficit of $1,652,795 previously. A clearer demonstration of what is doing in the steel and iron industry could not be made. Tradesmen realize the change far better than the stock market realizes it.

The same holds good of the copper industry, whose startlingly prosperous condition has not been reflected on the stock exchanges. Copper is as essential to Europe and American business as are iron and steel. And yet its necessity and extraordinary demand are appreciated on 'change even less than is the enormous consumption of steel and iron.

• • •

For that matter, high grade railway shares have suffered from want of appreciation on the bourse, although earnings statements are innovating. Louisville & Nashville net in January increased $820,642.

In the money markets there were two arresting items. Russia, it was reported, had placed a "war loan" of 50,000,000 yen in Japan. What the cablegram meant was that Russia had given the Japanese bonds, instead of cash, for the war supplies that Japan had, and is furnishing the Russian government. The transaction is descriptive of Japan's co-operation with Russia in the war.

Denver reported deposits of $407,000,000 gold and $69,000,000 silver. The disproportion is instructive of how a once aggressively silver community may become reconciled to the more precious metal. The amount of gold in the Colorado mint is indicative of its superabundance throughout the country.

FINANCIAL

By W. H. ROSS,

Stocks were weak in New York at the close after a quiet session. The price range was narrow from start to finish and features were few. Alaska Gold provided one. It sold in New York and Boston as low as 19⅛. Transactions totalled 162,300 shares and bond sales amounted to $1,195,000 in New York. For the week, 2,993,600 shares changed hands and bond business amounted to $17,518,000.

War industrials were weak as a class today. It is reported that in placing future munition contracts the business will not be so widely distributed. Corporations which have furnished the most satisfactory supplies will get about all of the new business, according to rumor. It is said that Bethlehem Steel will be particularly favored.

DECLINES AND GAINS

Declines at the close included Anaconda ¾, Chino ¼, Kennecott ⅜, Utah Copper ⅛, Alaska Gold 1⅛, American Can ¾, American Locomotive ¾, American Smelting ½, Baldwin 1¼, Crucible ⅝, Marine certificates 1, Distillers ½, Goodrich ½, Lackawanna Steel 2, Maxwell 1⅛, Studebaker 1, National Lead ¼, Texas Co. 1, U. S. Steel ⅜, Industrial Alcohol 1⅞, Westinghouse ⅜, Canadian Pacific ½, Chesapeake & Ohio 1¼, Erie ½, N. Y. Central ¾, Reading ⅞, Southern Pacific ½, St. Paul ⅜, Rock Island ⅜ and Union Pacific ⅝.

Among gains were Cuban-American Sugar 8¾, Beet Sugar ½, American Sugar 1¼, Car & Foundry ¼, California Petroleum ⅜, Mexican Petroleum 1¼, Colorado Fuel ¼, General Electric ½, General Electric ½, Great Northern Ore ¼, Republic Steel ¼, Willys-Overland 2, Atchison ⅛, Baltimore & Ohio ¼ and Northern Pacific ⅛.

New Haven was unchanged.

Gains in Boston, where the list was irregular at the close, included American Zinc ¼, Butte & Superior 2, Copper Range 1¼, Granby 2, Mohawk 1½, North Butte ⅛, Osceola ¾, Tamarack ½, U. S. Smelting ¾, and United Shoe ½.

Among declines were Alaska Gold 1½, Ahmeek ¾, Isle Royale ¼, New Idria 1, United Fruit 1, Woolen preferred ⅛, Atlantic Gulf common 1 and Boston Elevated 1½.

Allouez was unchanged, as were Gulf preferred, Boston & Maine, Calumet & Arizona, Lake, Wolverine, Superior, St. Mary, Quincy, Old Dominion and New Haven.

All things considered, the local market had a better tone all the morning than the one in New York. Zincs were a feature, but American Zinc was not as strong as Butte & Superior. Coppers were very quiet at the opening, but improved after it became known that speculation in standard copper warrants would be resumed on Monday in London. The Metals Exchange committee made arrangements satisfactory to the Minister of Munitions. He will allow a resumption of trading in all metals. For several days the market has been confined to tin.

FIRM AT THE OPENING.

Stocks were firm at the opening in New York with price changes small. A number of issues advanced a little and others were unchanged. Declines were few. After a few minutes offerings of stocks increased and there was less stability to prices. The market was quiet at the start. The trading situation appeared to be much the same as at the close yesterday. There was more confidence in regard to the situation at Washington, but fear that the international difficulty will cause trouble still exists. This caused caution on the part of room traders who are as much in doubt as any class of speculators. This being the week-end was another circumstance tending to act as a restraint upon commitments.

Within a quarter of an hour the market weakened and losses were the rule. They ranged from fractions to more than a point. Among issues to decline the most were Studebaker, which was freely offered from the beginning, and American Smelting. Industrial Alcohol advanced a point, but soon lost part of its gain. American Car and Foundry opened strong.

STEEL TRADE SITUATION.

The steel trade was never in such a strong situation as now. Prices still have an upward tendency, but advances have not stopped buying. Last week it was found by comparison that the average price for steel products was $16.17 a ton higher than in 1915 and $18 above the 1914 average.

During January and February steel orders were placed which aggregated 4,000,000 tons in amount, and during the two months prices had gone up from $5 to $10 a ton. Three big railroad systems have placed this week orders for rails for next year delivery totalling about 70,000 tons. Buying so far ahead indicates that railway managers fear prices will be higher in 1917 than now.

There is speculation as to what the United States Steel Corporation will report on March 10 as to the unfilled tonnage on its books at the end of February. One estimate is that an increase of at least 600,000 tons will be reported. The minimum estimate is 300,000 tons.

MILLIONS MADE IN CUBA SUGAR CROPS

By B. C. FORBES.

New York, March 4.—A group of Russians more or less identified with the placing of government contracts here are enlivening New York downtown as well as uptown. They have money to burn. Some of the spectacular gyrations in war stocks are said by those in the know to be due to the erratic operations of these daring gamblers.

They play for high stakes, and not always according to Wall Street's Hoyle, that is, they are guided by no hoary speculative rules. Sometimes they win, at other times they lose.

If they stay long enough, Wall Street is apt to flay them. The veterans usually outwit greenhorns.

The stock market, like the war, is believed to be on the eve of big developments. In both cases nobody is quite sure which way things will go.

• • •

Cuba's sugar plantations have raised a crop of millionaires. The formation of the Cuba Cane Sugar Company, by alert New York financiers, has meant the buying up of some twenty plantations in Cuba. One planter, I am told, got $4,000,000 for his property.

What are these "newly riches" doing with their millions?

There has been a general migration from the island to New York. The swell hotels and expensive apartments are now housing numbers of them. They are living in splendid shape. Some of them plan to return to their Spain after the war and live the life of grandees.

A few, I hear, have plunged into the Wall Street speculative vortex.

• • •

American bankers had better bestir themselves if they hope to invade Cuba successfully. They will meet vigorous competition there.

The Royal Bank of Canada already has twelve branches in Havana alone and fifty scattered throughout the island.

Thomas Ritchie, of Marwick, Mitchell, Peet & Company, returned this week from an official auditing trip on behalf of the Royal. Cuba, he tells me, never had so much money before. Only a blow has been struck the tobacco industry by Britain's order forbidding all imports of tobacco.

This has thrown 10,000 workers idle—workers who, because of their indoor life under peculiar conditions are not suited for labor on the plantations. Cuba hopes to induce Britain to modify her decree.

There is a chance that American smokers may get bargains from Cuba before long.

LET US HAVE PEACE

GOVERNOR GLYNN'S speech was a magnificent defence of the Democratic administration as a peace administration.

If the facts bore out Governor Glynn's fine phrases the election would be all over but counting the majority.

The Republicans would be defeated now. The Democratic party would instantly emerge from the Slough of Despond. It would instantly be the patriotic party, the successful party, the people's party.

But how is Governor Glynn's inspiring and reassuring eloquence to be reconciled to the hard facts?

How shall we marry his pretty phrases to the actual conditions?

According to Governor Glynn, the Republican party is the party of war. Mr. Root is the swooping hawk of war. The Democratic party is the party of peace. Mr. Wilson is the brooding dove of peace.

We wish this were so. We wish Governor Glynn's striking phrases were true.

But are they?

How can Governor Glynn reconcile his picture of the Democratic party as the party of peace with the attitude of President Wilson, the leader of the Democratic party, who is at this very moment exerting all the influence and authority and patronage of his powerful office to embroil us in war?

It has just been asserted in congressional debate that Mr. Wilson has privately declared to Senators that it would be a service to civilization to thrust this country into the European war.

This is outdoing Root. If Root is the swooping hawk of war, Mr. Wilson has suddenly become the screaming eagle of war.

Root put forth only the preposterous proposition that this country is the moral guardian of the earth and bound to go to war whenever some other nation acts immorally—a doctrine which Mr. Root does not believe and upon which he was very careful NOT to act when Secretary of State.

In other words, Mr. Root was talking buncombe, like the shifty lawyer he is, for votes, just as he has often talked buncombe for corporation fees.

But Mr. Wilson occupies a position different from that of a hired talker. He represents in the eyes of the world the purpose and the determination, as well as the dignity and the majesty, of the American people. And what Root might say, without exciting anything more than the cheap applause of partisans or the amused contempt of men of sense, Mr. Wilson can only say at the risk of exciting actual war.

Mr. Root declares that it was our duty in 1914 to fight Germany on account of Belgium, and everybody knows that Mr. Root is only talking the cheap talk of politics.

But Mr. Wilson is reported as saying that we would render a service to civilization by declaring war upon Germany and Austria, and that is too serious talk, coming from a President of the United States, to be set down as cheap politics.

The capitals of Europe, at least, will take these words to be serious words, full of import and of menace.

Mr. Wilson denies that he used the words attributed to him. But whether Mr. Wilson denies the accuracy of the phraseology or not, his truculent ACTIONS, during the past few days, leave small doubt that he THINKS as he is declared to have said he thought.

It is perfectly plain that he wants to embroil this country in war with Germany, even if he can find nothing more important to fight over than the recklessness of some foolhardy American who obstinately and unnecessarily risks his life in traveling on an armed ship instead of an unarmed ship.

And since this is at most a disputable matter, it is evident that some other reason must actuate Mr. Wilson; that he must believe that he will do "a service to civilization" if he embroils us in war.

A service to civilization! A service to civilization to bring the awful horrors of this war upon our country!

A service to civilization to sacrifice the wealth that this country is enjoying and to put this country along with England and France and Italy into bankruptcy!

A service to civilization to load this country with a tremendous debt that would be a burden upon this generation and generations to come, and would prevent the people for a century, perhaps, from possessing again the prosperity which we now enjoy!

A service to civilization to slaughter our sons, to make our families desolate, to break the hearts of wives and mothers, to destroy our best manhood!

A service to civilization to run the risk, in the combinations and permutations of European politics and diplomacy, of finding peace suddenly made abroad and the full force of victorious arms sent upon this country to devastate and depopulate it!

Why, no one but a homicidal maniac would needlessly project this peaceful and prosperous country into the maelstrom of European destruction.

If we blame the Kaiser or the Czar for having precipitated their nations into war, even with some cause of fear or hatred, how much more would we have to blame a ruler of this country who would precipitate this country into war with no fear, with no hatred, with no reason except possible presidential ambition or blind prejudice?

It remains to be seen whether the Democratic majority in Congress will indorse the attitude which Mr. Wilson has so suddenly and so truculently assumed.

If they do, there is nothing for Governor Glynn to do, in self-respect, but to retract his defence and his eulogy of the Democratic administration and his condemnation of Root and the Republican party.

For, in that case, it is as clear as day that Governor Glynn is all wrong; that the Democratic party, under Mr. Wilson's whip, is no longer the party of peace, but the party of needless and senseless war; that the swooping hawk of war is not Root, but the Democratic leader and President of the United States.

Every word that Governor Glynn said in his eulogy of the Democratic President and the Democratic party becomes a RIDICULOUS CONTRADICTION OF FACTS.

The Republican party becomes instantly the only hope of the country.

If we are to maintain peace, in that case, we can do so only by rejecting the party of war.

And if we are to have war, against the will and the judgment and the sober sense of the American people, then the people should surely elect a man who will be a strong and powerful war President.

They should elect a soldier such as Colonel Roosevelt and not a doctrinaire and academician like Mr. Wilson.

For war means business—dreadful, hideous business—and nobody would be willing to risk the destinies of the nation, in such frightful times, in the hands of any impractical man or of any mere maker of fine phrases.

In this grave and portentous crisis the hope of the country is necessarily rested upon the patriotism and good sense of you men who compose the Democratic majority in Congress.

It is not a pleasant task which is laid upon your shoulders, for you must either oppose the Democratic President or sacrifice your own solemn sense of duty and obligation to your country and to your people. But in such a dilemma no good man among you will long hesitate what course to pursue.

Your fellow-countrymen, indeed, elected you as Democrats, but they also elected you, first of all, as Americans, and they will confidently look to you to act first as Americans, and after that, if you honorably can, as members of a political party.

And, in fact, we know of no way in which a Democratic member of Congress can so signally serve true Democracy as by maintaining the Democratic stand for honorable peace and by resisting even presidential persuasion or coercion to force this nation into a war in which there is no reason at all to excuse our taking a bloody and wasteful part.

Gentlemen of the Congress, do your duty first by your countrymen, and in so doing you will find, eventually, that you have done your duty and your best possible service to yourselves and to your party.

Gentlemen, keep the peace!

KING BABY—HIS WEEK

Copyright, International News Service.

"We do well to speak of 'King Baby,' for the right by which a little child shall rule is a diviner, sweeter right and sanctity than ever was accorded to kings."

The week we are fairly entering upon should be a week of rest for all whose business sends them from house to house about the country. Insurance men, book agents, fruit peddlers and gentlemen offering the newest wrinkle in labor-saving devices for the home should have started upon their Winter vacations this morning.

There are two reasons:

1. Baby Week.
2. Automobile Week.

Nobody will be at home.

A week of weeks! Dedicated to the OLDEST and one of the NEWEST of inventions. Everybody should have as many of both as he can afford. They are within the reach of all. The original investment is small, the upkeep reasonable, and the profits—in health, wealth and happiness—beyond compute. If, however, you feel that you can have only one, "to start with," take the Baby, of course. But get the automobile as soon as possible.

Baby Week will be a week of genuine preparedness, a week dedicated to the nation-wide study of His Majesty. The first step in true preparedness is the rearing of healthy children.

Here in Boston, where we share with St. Louis the proud honor of standing SECOND among the largest ten cities in the United States in baby saving, meetings will be held daily. They begin today.

The Care of the Baby, The Baby and the Bath, The Care of Children at Birth, The Care of the Mother at Childbirth, Feeding in Infancy, Contagious Diseases, How to Choose a Proper Milk Supply; these are among the subjects to be discussed by Experts in meetings open to the public.

The first FORMAL assembly of Baby Week, a mass meeting for parents, is announced for this evening in Ford Hall.

Throughout the Week there will be meetings in some of the great department stores, the Jordan Marsh Company's, Filene's, and the Houghton & Dutton Company's, at the Boston Public Library, at Lorimer Hall in Tremont Temple, in Chipman Hall and in Faneuil Hall.

The Sunday AMERICAN tomorrow will print the Baby Week program in minute detail, carefully designating the time, the place and the subject to be considered at each and every meeting. Here and now, by the way, it gives us pleasure to direct the attention of gentlemen to the fact that on Thursday, at noon—Thursday is "Fathers' Day"—Dr. A. A. Berle will speak in Faneuil Hall on "A Man and His Children." Every Pa in Greater Boston should do his best to crowd in.

We observe with interest that the National Government, having expended millions of the public money for the betterment of horses, cows, chickens and pigs, belatedly shows an interest in King Baby, at least to the extent of suggesting Baby Week and calling upon the women's clubs of the United States to do the work.

This governmental appeal for the help of the women is one of the MANY good things to be seen in the Baby Week idea. We earnestly hope the Week will be the magnificent success it should be. Perhaps it will encourage Uncle Sam to enlist the women permanently, by means of equal suffrage.

Tomorrow's Sunday AMERICAN will also be a "Motor Show" number. The fourteenth annual automobile show, opening tonight in Mechanics Building and continuing until next Saturday night, inclusive, promises to be the largest and most successful in the history of the automobile in New England. In addition to a wonderful motor show section, of 22 pages, the news sections of the Sunday AMERICAN will tell an interesting story of "opening night."

Our friends in BROCKTON will want the Sunday AMERICAN tomorrow for a second instalment of the story of vicious conditions in that great and growing city. We return to the subject because of the evident desire of certain Brockton organizations, which should be and pretend to be in better business, to cry "hush! hush!" and to throw the wet blanket of their august disapproval upon the suggestion that Brockton needs a moral cleansing. If Brockton druggists are generous subscribers to the Brockton No License movement, the people of Brockton should know who these druggists are and WHY they oppose the open saloon.

GLOUCESTER wants ALL the facts concerning the sensational State House charge that a Gloucester legislator passed the hat for funds with which to accelerate the movement of a Gloucester highway bill through a legislative committee of which the collector is House chairman. ALL the facts will be printed in the Sunday AMERICAN.

EVERETT will have the Sunday AMERICAN to hear Alderman John J. Mullen say the things his colleagues in the Board of Aldermen will not listen to. Mr. Mullen is the city father who was ousted from "the Hall," a night or two ago, by policemen. His associates in the Government call him "rambunctious." His photograph makes him look like a militarist. The Sunday AMERICAN stands for free speech. Come in, tomorrow, and hear "John J."

LYNN folk will want the Sunday AMERICAN for a special reason which we are not at liberty to divulge today.

EVERYBODY will want tomorrow's paper because, on the first Sunday of the month, one copy of the American Sunday Monthly Magazine for March goes with each and EVERY copy of the Sunday AMERICAN.

Notwithstanding its attractiveness, notwithstanding that it is written by E. Phillips Oppenheim, George A. Birmingham, Frances Aymar Matthews, Harris Merton Lyon and Arthur B. Reeve, and illustrated by James Montgomery Flagg, A. B. Wenzell, Clarence F. Underwood, Armand Both and Harrison Fisher, NO EXTRA CHARGE IS MADE FOR THE MAGAZINE.

Mr. Harrison Fisher's contribution is the front-cover painting, "Fair and Warmer." We know several 15-cent magazines that never have offered a front cover so beautiful.

Owen Johnson, G. K. Chesterton, the Rev. R. J. Campbell, Lady Duff-Gordon, Lewis Allen, Thomas E. Powers and T. A. Dorgan are OTHER reasons for purchasing the Sunday AMERICAN. The subject of the illustrated full-page editorial is "Men Have Been Donkeys, and Women Deceivers—from the Beginning."

John W. Moran, baseball reporter plus, will tell us how fares it with the Boston Braves, hurrying Miami-wards.

The news? The last word from Everywhere? Well, you saw LAST Sunday's story of Verdun. Did you compare it with the Verdun story in OTHER Sunday newspapers? 'Nough said.

More copies of the Sunday AMERICAN are SOLD every week than of any other Sunday newspaper printed in these SIX States!

The Sunday AMERICAN is New England's greatest Sunday newspaper!
